ESTIMATES POINT TO BIG DECREASE IN WHEAT CROP

Excessive Rainfall Is One Adverse Factor

MILLS AFFECTED

Two Consecutive Lean Years Cause Apprehension

BY DAVID ARAKIE

This is the time of the year when many anxious eyes are turned towards the wheat crop in China. The anxiety of the numerous flour mills in the country in this connection is but natural, for they have been through two consecutive very lean years, their plant being shut down for the most part of this period. It is hardly necessary to recall that for two seasons the wheat crop in China has been very disappointing, and the flour mills that depend so largely upon indigenous supplies of wheat were consequently compelled to shut down entirely, with very few exceptions, not long after the season had opened last year.

The plight of these factories at various times during the past season in obtaining supplies at reasonable prices was distressing. American wheat at the start could be obtained at a fair price but the market in the States began to make advances. The appreciation in the local values of flour, on the other hand, was not correspondingly so. Milling at various times during the season just closed was thus a losing proposition to the mills. A brave attempt was made to mill Northwest Pacific wheat but the fates seemed to have been against the Shanghai factories.

Not only was the crop poor last season but an unlooked for contingency arose. Wheat was being made a substitute for dear rice by the poor of China. Supplies which, in the ordinary course, would have gone to keep the flour mills busy were greedily consumed by others, as the price was 25 percent cheaper than rice. Farmers and holders took advantage of the position and raised their prices, which made the task of collecting supplies a strenuous one for the milling companies.

RAINFALL HELPS

During the drought that was threatening to destroy the growing crop of cereals grave fears were expressed that the flour mills would have to depend on imported wheat this year to supply their needs. With the fall of rain hopes ran high that the crop would be saved, and the outlook from then on appeared to be dependent largely upon the weather.

It would appear that the recent weather was too wet for wheat harvesting, and the crop is, therefore, estimated to be some ten percent less than was anticipated a few weeks ago. So far as intentions go, it would seem that the farmers have made every effort to raise a larger crop this year. There are, of course, some claims that acreage in certain parts had not increased as much as it might have been, although in a few districts the acreage shows a falling off. This is because the farmers have gone in for more profitable crops, like cotton and rapeseed.

The following estimates have been compiled through many reliable sources, and are the best guesses that can be made. It must not be forgotten that in the absence of a statistical department in China the task of collating data of such a nature is often very unsatisfactory. The crop around Hankow district, embracing Hupeh and Hunan provinces, is computed to range between 40 to 50 percent of an ordinary crop, in the Tientsin-Pukow Railway district some 60 to 70 percent, the Kiangsu province 60 to 70 percent, and the Wuhu district (Anwei Province) about 70 percent.

These preliminary estimates on probable acreage indicate an increase of some 10 percent. In the opinion of those who have made a careful and unbiassed survey the increase, on the whole, will not be more then 15 percent the utmost. The heavy rains of a couple of weeks ago appear to have reduced the yield, the estimates putting the whole crop down to 70-80 percent then, but 60 to 70 percent now. The quality

Teams Gratified By Result In Church's Campaign; Total To Date Tls. 41,716

Expect Goal Of Tls. 65,000 Will Be Reached in Few Days; Look For Substantial Sum From America, Where Workers Are Busy

Mr. E. L. Healey, the Financial Secretary of the Community Church, announced last night that a total of taels 41,716 had been received to date on the account of the Campaign Fund.

The final dinner of the campaign was held at the Hotel Parisien last night at 7:00 o'clock, when one hundred and twenty members of Community Church were present. The meeting was full of enthusiasm and the affair was like a big family gathering.

During the evening speeches were made by Prof. G. C. Stockton, Dr. Robert Dick Wilson of Princeton, and Mr. J. M. Yard. The Rev. Clifford M. Drury, pastor of the church, was toastmaster.

The team led by Dr. Anne Walter Fearn was again in the lead. On the last day of the campaign they brought in Tls. 2,063.

CHAIRMAN GRATIFIED

Dr. J. B. Fearn, chairman of the Governing Board, was most enthusiastic over the outcome.

"I have no doubt that within a few days we shall have the total sum for which we started, Tls. 65,000," he said. "We have not yet heard from our friends in the United States. Many letters have been sent to people in America, and there is a strong committee working there under the leadership of Mr. Fred Sites."

There are still a large number of individuals in Shanghai who have not yet subscribed and there are several firms who have not yet returned their subscription cards to the committee.

At the dinner last night there were present two men from one of the U. S. Shipping Board boats. They had attended the service at the Masonic Hall Sunday afternoon and were impressed with the spirit of friendship and cordiality. When they heard the announcement of the church dinner they decided to attend. They left behind a substantial subscription as a token of their appreciation of the American Church in Shanghai.

TELLS OF START

During the course of the evening Mrs. J. L. Connell told how the Community Church was started. Several years ago some young American business men were having tiffin at the home of Mr. Fred Sites. During the afternoon they sang some of the old hymns. The next Sunday some other Americans got together at the home of Mr. Sites and had another sing. Gradually the number increased until finally Mr. Sites asked Mrs. Connell if they might use her drawing room for the Sunday afternoon American song service. From that beginning for several years it was known as The American Song Service. They continued to use the drawing room in Mrs. Connell's home for four months. Having outgrown that room they moved to the Palace Hotel, and so began what has become the Community Church of Shanghai.

The Governing Board has announced a meeting for today at tiffin time, when they will go forward with their plans for the new church building. The members of the Board are all very confident that the entire sum will be secured at an early date and therefore have no hesitation in going forward with their building plans.

YOUNG DESERTERS BREAK CUSTODY, AGAIN ARRESTED

The escape took place between 1 and 2 p.m. and a warrant for their arrest was immediately applied for and issued. Within two hours the Municipal police had located the two in the Hongkew district and placed them again in custody.

PENSION SCHEME OF COUNCIL GIVES DISSATISFACTION

Men In Various Branches Dislike Age Stipulation

Much dissatisfaction has been aroused in various branches of the Municipal service, particularly the Police Department, over the terms of the Pension Scheme which have just been communicated to them by the Council. The scheme approved by the Council is made effective as from January 1 of this year.

The objection to the scheme is mainly on the point of the age and term of service qualifications necessary to secure the pensions. The term of service required in either maximum or minimum pension qualifications is 20 years. The age specified for the maximum pension is 55 years and that for the minimum 50 years. In this connection, many of the men point out, most of them have joined the service at an early age and must serve many additional years beside the requisite 20 to earn the pension, whereas the old men in the service are the only ones to benefit.

In announcing the scheme the Council remarks that it is aware certain difficulties will arise in its application, for although continuity of service is desirable in many branches of the service there are others where it is not essential. The pension schema, it is stated, is not intended to apply to cases coming under the latter head and it is considered probable that it will be necessary to decide on a basis of staff classification, under which they would be automatically excluded.

The benefits of the pension scheme, it is remarked, are in addition to those given under the superannuation fund rule. The following are the qualifications:

For maximum pension—20 years' service, age 55 years: retirement to be compulsory unless retention is considered to be in the interests of the service.

For minimum pension—20 years' service, age 50 years, retirement at the option of the employe, subject to the Council's approval and a reduction of the percentage on which the maximum pension is calculated of 1 percent for each year of age shortage.

The basis of calculation for the maximum pension is a percentage of the final salary—taking exchange at 3s. 4d.—graduated as follows: as regards employes who joined prior to January 1, 1903, the percentage to be 15 percent and the Council's "make-up" to complete 25 years superannuation fund accumulations converted into an annuity. The age conversion to be at the discretion of the Council, subject to a maximum age of 65 years. Maximum pension to be £500.

As regards employes who joined between January 1, 1903 and July 1, 1921 the percentage for the year of 1903 is figured at 14½ percent, the maximum pension to be £500. The percentage is then dropped ½ a point for each succeeding year, the £500 maximum ruling up through the year 1907, after which it drops £20 each year, resting at £220 for the period from January 1, 1921 to June 30, 1921.

As regards employes who joined on or after July 1, 1921 the percentage is to be 5 percent, with a maximum pension of £200.

Released Rotarians Are Welcomed Home

With their five weeks' growth of whiskers, side-burns and mustaches, J. B. Powell, editor of the Weekly Review of the Far East and Lee Solomon of Block Company, Shanghai Rotarians, were welcomed back into the fold by their fellow Rotarians at the Club. To lend local color to the affair, "Russky," alias Liu Yue-tsai, erstwhile bandit and guard of the Sap Club on the precipices of Paotzuku, whom Solomon brought out from the bandit lair, was also there with his gun and everything.

Judge Peter Grain of the British Supreme Court was the principal speaker of the occasion, while Admiral Anderson, Commander of the United States Asiatic Fleet was among the guests of the club. Ca[illegible] who organized the [illegible] at Tsaochuang described his experience, resenting the ungratefulness of the captives for leaving their Shantung wilderness so quickly after being supplied with all the necessary articles and provisions for a pleasant summer with brigands.

As the two captives marched into the dining room followed by their armed former-captor a la Paotzuku, the members stood up and sang "Hail, Hail, The Gang's All Here."

After thanking the club for its message which was not only read but closely studied by the two Rotary captives as well as all other foreign victims at Paotzuku, Mr. Powell painted a graphic picture of the closing session of the negotiations conducted by himself, Solomon, Roy Anderson and Mr. Wen Shih-tsen of Nanking with the bandit chiefs on Tuesday, the day of their release. The parley took place in a mud house in Tsi Li Ho. Both the Rotarians were present on account of their efforts in bringing the bandits to ter[illegible] the [illegible] officials [illegible]

The small room was crowded with bandit chiefs, half a dozen strong, the same number of officials and military guards and as many bandit guards, because for every government soldier, there was a bandit. The negotiations, which was started by Anderson and Wen, were drawn out to almost four weeks because there was a difference of opinion among the half a dozen of bandit chiefs.

The negotiators had to work on the younger bandits who wanted a military career, while the old ones, with their long criminal records did not care to join the army. Even when the final stage was reached, Mr. Powell said, one of the old chiefs on Tuesday suggested that Roy Anderson should remain with the bandits for ten days in order that all the foreign captives be released.

This was not acceptable to the Chinese officials; and negotiations were almost broken off at this point. Fortunately, Sun Mei-yao, the young chief who wanted to become the head of the newly organised bandit army of 2,500 gave in and the pact was signed. The government spent $87,000 instead of $10,000,000 as originally demanded by the bandits. In fact money was the least concerned matter among the bandits, Mr. Powell asserted. After his signature, Sun delivered an eloquent speech in which he said that he would make use of the new army for the service of the Republic of China.

The document was then signed by the leading members of the Shantung gentry, representatives of the Chamber of Commerce at Shanghai and at other capitals and Chinese officials, including Mr. Anderson to whose signature the bandit attached a great deal of faith.

Mr. Solomon was then rushed to the bandit lair waving the little document to the bandits and captives. When the news had finally come, the bandits donned their newly acquired army uniform over their old, dirty bandit clothes and put the campaign caps over their Shantung straw bonnet.

With the eight foreign captives, three Chinese who had been acting as their interpreters were also released. They were Prof. C. G. Hung of Fuhtan University; C. Chen of the Chinese Merchantile Bank and Yang, a student. On account of the fact that one of the released Chinese captives had undertaken to effect the release of two other Chinese, the march from Paotsuku to Tsaochuang, a distance of 20 miles, were for several times interrupted.

When they finally arrived in Tsaochuang, the released victims broke open three bottles of champagne sent to Mr. Musso by his Shanghai friends and celebrated.

AMERICAN CHAMBER AND ASSOCIATION DEMAND ACTION BY THE POWERS

Organisations Draw Scathing Indictment Of Chaotic Condition In China, And Ask "Decisive And Drastic" Measures By Foreign Governments To Insure Safety Of Life And Investments In China

The most severe indictment of present day conditions in China yet made by responsible and influential foreign organisations was contained in a joint statement issued by the American Chamber of Commerce and the American Association of China yesterday. The statement was issued within a few hours after the last foreign captives to be captured by the Shantung bandits had been released and the flight of President Li from the Presidential Palace in Peking as a result of the machinations of Tsao Kun, the Peiyang warlord.

The foreign Powers must take decisive and drastic action or foreigners will be compelled to leave China in order to protect their lives and withdraw from this country commercially in order to protect their property, according to the two organisations' statement.

The statement was cabled by the organisations to Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes in Washington as well as being carried in detail by the Associated Press, the International News Service, and other news associations representing every important newspaper in the United States.

It is said that the American denouncement of conditions as they are in China is the first gun in a concentrated attack in which every important nationality will follow suit. It was declared last night that the British commercial interests represented in China are now preparing a somewhat similar statement to be cabled to London and that cablegrams in a like vein will also be sent by the French, Japanese, Italian and others.

The extraordinary statement was inspired by the recent outrages on the upper Yangtsze, the kidnapping of missionaries of all nationalities in Honan last summer, the Lincheng outrage and other occurences of recent times that have endangered foreign lives and property.

GUNBOATS INADEQUATE

The direct charge is made that American gunboats have proved inadequate to meet the situation and to give protection. Chinese officials, another charge reads, deliberately violate all treaty rights and refuse to afford protection to foreigners or their property.

Travel between treaty ports, it is pointed out, has become unsafe both by land and water and systematised dispatch of cargo is prevented. While these things exist the opium traffic is encouraged and flourishes.

Conditions, it is held, are worse than they ever have been since the Boxer uprising in 1900 and the contempt of Chinese for foreigners and for foreign officials is increasing. This is true, it is held, because of the indecision and failure of foreign government officials to secure suitable remedies for existing evils —a situation that is being taken advantage of by Chinese officials to discredit foreign governments.

THE CABLEGRAM

The cablegram that the two bodies sent to Washington last night has teeth in it. Here it is —the full text of it:

"Intolerable conditions created in China by Washington's indecision and failure to act aggressively in present crisis. American lives and liberty throughout China endangered. Prestige and business being destroyed by lack of strong action. We demand immediate protection for Americans in China and urge action along following lines until strong and satisfactory government established in China.

"First—Suspension of all benefits to China under the Washington Conference.

"Second — Disarmament of troops and their return to their homes and the placing of Chinese finances under foreign supervision.

"Third—Foreign guards be placed upon lines of communication both land and water.

"Fourth—Foreign garrisons be placed at strategic points throughout China.

"Fifth—Suspension of the return of the Boxer Indemnity.

"Sixth—Co-operation with Great Britain in providing remedies for present conditions.

"These recommendation meet with approval of substantial Chinese business and banking interests who deprecate chaotic conditions in China but who will not act for fear of persecution at hands of present regime.

"It is understood that British interests in China are to make

Says Ship That Formerly Touched At U. S. Ports Will Go Elsewhere

Exclusive Dispatch To

Washington, June 14.—Secretarry Hoover declared today that the ship liquor regulations made necessary by the recent [illegible] some [illegible] tremendous handicap upon American seaport business. He pointed out that vessels which ordinarily would land at American ports for coal and other supplies would now buy these elsewhere, and that the cargoes formerly loaded and discharged by ships enroute to the West Indies, Central America and Canada would be obliged to make other arrangements when carrying liquor as part of their cargoes.

French Impose More Restrictions

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 13.—In consequence of the shooting of a sentry, a curfew has been imposed at Recklinghausen. Travel between occupied and unoccupied Germany in the neighborhood of the town has been prohibited. The heads of the police force have been arrested.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 13.—It is reported from Recklinghausen that a French patrol shot dead two Germans who were walking in the streets on Monday night in spite of the French prohibition.

As a result of a shot fired at a French sentry at Wanne, the inhabitants have been forbidden to leave their houses after dark.

The town of Etulfroth and Wipperfurth have been fined 25,000,000 marks and 30,000,000 marks respectively owing to French sentries being fired on.

London, June 13.—The Cabinet discussed reparations today. Marquess Curzon communicated information on the attitude of the Allies as a result of the exchange of view since the German offer.

It is understood that the declaration of British policy has been postponed for a week as diplomatic interchange of views is proceeding.

London, June 13.—A more hopeful spirit regarding the Ruhr negotiations between France and Britain is inspired by semi-official statements in London and Paris. The former indicates that Britain is determined to explore every avenue and that an active exchange of views is progressing.

Reuter's Paris correspondent states that the French representative in London reports that conversations are being pursued in a spirit of cordiality.

Tsaochuang, June 13.—Although all foreign captives have been liberated, a large number of Chinese prisoners are still held by the bandits at Paotsuku.

Messengers returning from the bandit lair state that the victims are in a very precarious condition. Obviously, a section of the outlaws who are reluctant to rejoin the rank and file of troops desire to leave for some other safe stronghold, and carry with them the Chinese captives, who, they say, are their "capital."

The representatives of the Chinese General Chambers of Commerce here are doing their utmost to effect their release, but up to the present, their fate remains uncertain.

It is reported that the officials have recognised the "right" of the bandits to retain the prisoners captured prior to the raid on the Tientsin-Pukow Train on the ground that they were held up to ransom anyway.

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 14.—The Peking correspondent of the Times, commenting on the situation of which the Lincheng outrage is symptomatic, urges the necessity of inspiriting the Tuchuns to fear retribution.

The correspondent says that it needs only to show firmness to restore foreign prestige. An essential need is a small increase of the foreign forces supplementing by the warning that further attacks on foreigners will be followed by occupation of the railways.

If the present opportunity is neglected a fullblown military expedition would be necessary, followed by consequences which cannot be foretold. Those who imagine that foreign intervention in China is an outside probability, the correspondent affirms, are merely closing their eyes to facts.

Henley, Released Captive, Married

One of the recently released captives of the Lincheng bandits has become a benedick, after a two year pursuit of the girl of his choice, according to word received from Peking.

The bridegroom is Mr. Jerome Henley, of China and Far East Finance and Commerce, captured when the Blue Express was held up and released on June 2, and the bride was Miss Nina Peggy Brooks, formerly of San Francisco and Los Angeles and for some time a resident of Shanghai.

The wedding took place last Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Anderson, where Miss Brooks had been staying.

Mrs. Henley's home is in Los Angeles and it was while she was in San Francisco that she met Mr. Henley. He sought her hand but she declined the offer and some time later came to Shanghai as buyer for one of the big San Francisco stores. Mr. Henley followed and during recent months pressed his suit here. Miss Brooks was still reluctant and left for Peking shortly before the bandit attack on the Tientsin-Pukow express without having accepted her suitor. It was with the purpose of making a final effort to gain her consent, it is understood, that Mr. Henley left for the capital, boarding the ill-fated Blue Train at Pukow.

His trials while in the bandit hands evidently brought about the lady's capitulation and the wedding ceremony followed close on his release from the stronghold at Paotzuku.

Consuls Now At Tsinanfu

Mr. John K. Davis, American Consul; Mr. B. G. Tours, British Consul-General (Tsinanfu); Mon. Crepin, French Vice-Consul and Capt. R. Ferrajolo, Italian Vice-Consul, who have been at Tsaochuang during the bandit episode, were due to go to Tsinanfu yesterday to continue their investigations as members of the International Commission for the Investigation of the Lincheng Outrage.

The foreign consular representatives are sitting on the commission with Mr. B. C. Wen (Chairman) and Dr. Lee Fong of the Waichiapu, Managing Director Sun of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, and other government and railway officials. They are attempting to fix the blame for the entire affair.

At the conclusion of the investigation Mr. Davis will go to Peking to make a personal report to the American Minister, Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman.

Estimates Point To Smaller Crop

of the yield in certain parts shows a falling off, due, no doubt, to the effects of the copious rainfall and, possibly, to the drought previously experienced.

SIX MONTHS' WORK

The flour mills, in which have been invested some 20 million taels, should be able to work for at least six months this year, provided, of course, the populace do not draw on this grain as a substitute for rice. The opening prices for the new wheat are some 50 percent higher than the average of ordinary years, being Tls. 3.60 per picul against Tls. 3.30 per picul at the beginning of the last season.

The crop in the United States is reported to be quite satisfactory, and the market there has been declining rapidly in consequence. Western white No. 2 is quoted at G.$43 per ton cif for August-September shipment, or G.$3.50 lower than a month ago. If this tendency continues in both the Chinese and American markets there may be a prospect of importing American wheat into Shanghai, but this should be possible only in October or November.

There should be opportunities as well of importing Australian flour into China, which is cheaper than American at the present moment, being quoted at £12.12 for long ton, equivalent to Tls. 1.82 per sack against Tls. 2.00 per sack for the American grade. Stocks of flour in Shanghai now amount to about 400,000 sacks, which is considered a big holding. Exports of these to the interior and to Swatow, Amoy and other places have been very slow owing to the disturbed condition of the country. Some of the large consuming points are stated to have large supplies. Small lots of American flour continue to arrive every week. The wheat crop in India, it might be added, is cabled to be a prosperous one.

Kuling Religious School Opens On July 18

Mr. Wm. L. Sanders, Secretary of the Kuling Summer School of Religious Education, reports that everything is now in readiness. He is now in Kuling shaping things up.

This School of Religious Education, which begins on July 18 and lasts for ten days, is for people of all denominations, both Chinese and foreign. The courses will all be given in English.

This is the first time that a Summer School of Religious Education has been attempted in China, and it is expected that a large number will register. The interest in religious education is growing every year, and there are many such conferences every summer in the States and Great Britain.

The Secretary says, "We aim to make it truly religious and truly educational." While it is expected that there will be much inspiration in the lectures and in the round table discussions a great deal of emphasis will be placed upon the newer theories and methods in psychology and religious education.

Fourteen Charged With Sale Of Opium

Fourteen Chinese appeared in the Mixed Court yesterday charged with abetting in the sale of opium at 56 King Loong Ka, off Honan Road, where the police on Wednesday morning made one of the biggest drug hauls in recent weeks.

Some 300 lbs. of raw opium, a quantity of prepared opium and a large amount of opium paraphernalia, account books etc. were seized in the raid as well as two safes for which no keys were found and permission to open which was asked by Mr. Maitland, prosecuting, and granted by Assessor Allman and Magistrate Yui.

Mr. F. R. Hadley appeared for ten of the accused and Mr. H. D. Rodger for the others. The case was adjourned one week, the accused being put on $200 security each.

New Law Needed For Boxer Fund

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 13.—In the House of Commons today, replying to questions, Mr. Ronald McNeill, the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, said that legislation was necessary to carry out the Government's intention to devote the British share of the Boxer Indemnity to purposes of mutual benefit to Britain and China. The Government did not propose to appoint a committee to investigate the utilisation of the funds until the bill now being drafted had been introduced.

SUN'S PROGRESS

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, June 13.—Dr. Sun Yat-sen is still making his headquarters at Sheklung and reports that the situation on the East River is well under control, while General Yang Hsi-min, who is commanding the Yunnanese in the North River district, also reports that he has been successful in repulsing the Northern troops. Fighting is still in progress on the West River at Dosing.

The Cantonese Rice Guild will contribute 300,000 catties of rice a day for the next ten days to support the war.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 11.—Reports from Kwangtung indicate that Dr. Sun is still hampered by lack of funds and by friction between his son and General Hu Han-min. The forces against him continue active and in spite of hard fighting his followers have made little if any headway lately. The people of Canton are therefore reported to be anxious with regard to the situation and to be depositing their money and valuables in the banks at Shameen.

It is reported from the West River District that General Lu, the leader of the Yunnan troops, has been wounded and in the North Dr. Sun's forces have also been forced to withdraw while in the West River Districts it is feared that fighting may be renewed.

Lowers Liquor Bars To Physicians

JDGE John Clark Knox, of the United States District Court of New York, has ruled that the amendment to the Volstead act permitting physicians to prescribe one pint of whiskey to patients only once in ten days is illegal and that doctors cannot be limited in prescribing liquor for the sick. The Government appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Bulgaria Reports "Absolute Calm"

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 13.—Bulgaria's silence has at last been broken. A telegram of yesterday's date from Reuter's Sofia correspondent says that at a meeting of the Cabinet Colonel Kalkoff, the Foreign Minister, stated that absolute calm was reported everywhere. A few attempts at resistance by M. Stambulisky's supporters had been easily crushed. Railway and telegraphic communication had been restored. M. Stambulisky, supported by a loyal band of Agrarian Guards, after stoutly resisting the troops at Pazardjik, is reported to have taken refuge in a wood, where he is surrounded. Orders have been given to take him alive.

In connection with the alarming reports on the situation from Prague and Belgrade, it must be noted that the Bulgarian Ministers in both cities are supporters of the old regime and have been dismissed from their posts, while further evidence is given of Servian suspicion of the new Bulgarian Government in the complaint of the Belgrade newspapers that Professor Maloff, a former leader in Bulgarian comitadji incursions into Serbia, has been appointed Director of the Political Department of the Foreign Ministry at Sofia.

Style in Glasses

is just as important to-day as style in clothes—

You would not wear a white tie with a dinner coat, nor would you wear your street shoes with evening dress.

There is a style for every occasion for sport—for office—and for dress.

There is also a difference in the way your glasse sare fitted to your face—it requires skill to select th correct style of frame or mounting to suit the contour of your features and express Individuality.

See an Oculist First for eye examination. If glasses are not needed he will frankly tell you so. An OCULIST can administer treatment, if necessary. We have both oculist (physicians) and opticians in this establishment, or you may see your own Oculist (there are many good Oculists in Shanghai) and bring us the prescription, with the assurance that we will fill same accurately with comfortable and becoming styles in glasses.

Carlton Theater

"Passion," the motion picture now being shown at the Carlton Theater, is so full of charm, tense interest, fast action and unexpected situations that the audience is held fascinated from the opening scene to the tragic end.

The story of the master production is woven around the life of the famous French beauty, Madam Du Barry, who rose from a pretty little shop girl to the most influential woman in France."

The role of Madam Du Barry is remarkably interpreted by Pola Negri, the beautiful Polish actress who has taken America by charm and from her first appearance, as a heartless little flirt, until she is led fighting through the howling mob to the guillotine she carries all before her.

Pola Negri is supported by a very strong male cast. Each character is well worked out and special praise is due the actors taking the parts of King Louis XV, Madam Du Barry's youthful sweetheart who becomes a leader of the French Revolution, yet who is killed because of his undying love for the fascinating woman and the Prime Minister.

Madam Du Barry lived in the stirring days of the French Revolution and the costumes, spectacular settings, and stirring scenes—such as the fall of the Bastile—cost a fortune to produce. "Passion" inspires a desire to get out one's old stories of the French Revolution and read again of the days leading up to the revolution.

The picture is drawing a phenomenal crowd to the Carlton and last night as at the opening performance hundreds were turned away.

Finances In America

The following review of the financial situation in the United States is sent out by the National Bank of Commerce, of New York city:

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

An expectation of good business throughout 1923 seems justified by conditions today. Executives responsible for business policies are proceeding with intelligent caution. They are making skilful use of improved facilities for learning the facts of the situation and are shaping their courses accordingly. As a result there is reason to believe that the danger of overproduction and of inflation of prices and of wages by bidding for available supplies, is past for the time being. The prices of leading raw materials have receded somewhat and further declines in some commodities should occasion no surprise.

The expected check to building operations because of unduly high costs of labor and materials has occurred, and in the textile industries, in iron and steel and in manufactures generally a smaller volume of forward orders is being booked. Retail trade is excellent, with occasional local exceptions. There is little evidence of accumulation of stocks of finished goods at any point from the manufacturer to the consumer.

WHOLESOME CHECK

The check to production which has taken place is wholesome. In part it is seasonal. To a greater extent it is the result of widespread realisation that a considerable part of the output of recent months has been absorbed in building up depleted stocks to a point where they bear a fair relation to the present rate of consumption in the United States. From this time output must be absorbed primarily by current requirements. Confidence in the outlook is justified, but business men generally recognise that their hopes can be realised not by propagation of a boom psychology, but by careful testing of the consuming markets and by skilful adjustment of output and of prices to demand.

The only ultimate safeguard to the business of the country is the consensus of judgment of producers, merchants and financiers. They have already proved that they are competent to remember the lessons of 1920, and they are prepared to guard against the excesses of rising prices and other inflationary tendencies. Movements and utterances calculated to further warn against such tendencies are no longer needed and they might even so undermine confidence as to hamper sound business. Underlying conditions are sound and the outlook is promising.

MONEY RATES

Conditions in the money market have not changed materially in the last thirty days. The open market rate for prime commercial paper is 5 percent, with names less well-known at 5¼ to 5½ percent. Buying by country banks is not as active as a month ago, but there is a fair demand from city banks for the very limited supply of prime paper available.

Call money fluctuated considerably from April 16 to May 15. At the close of the period the renewal rate for call loans was 4½ percent. Time money was freely offered at 5¼ percent and a moderate business was done at that rate.

The brokers' selling rate on prime bankers' acceptances is 4¼ percent. Bills are offered in moderate volume and demand is fair.

SECURITIES

The most important event in the securities market during the last thirty days was the offering by the Secretary of the Treasury of about G. $400,000,000 Treasury notes, maturing March 15, 1927, which interest at 4¾ percent. This new issue together with balances on hand in the Treasury is intended to provide for payment of the outstanding Victory 4¾ percent notes, and also to meet cash requirements of the Treasury between now and June 15.

The offering of this issue practically completes the operations incident to the refunding of the war loans. From time to time we may expect offerings of United States Certificates of Indebtedness in connection with tax payments. It seems probable, however, that these offerings will be moderate in volume and that while they will continue to exert a stabilising factor on the money market, they cannot exert upon it as marked an influence as the heavy refunding operations which have taken place since last autumn.

The bond market was featureless from April 16 to May 15. Prices moved through a narrow range. The volume of new offerings was not large, the period being characterised by a gradual distribution into the hands of final investors of issues brought out in recent months.

A GENTLEMAN WHO CALLS ANOTHER GENTLEMAN A LIAR IS NO GENTLEMAN

Smith-Chadwick Battle At Stadium Tonight Sure To Be Genuine Thriller

One thing that the students of human nature have never been able to understand is the extreme sensitiveness of box fighters. From the nature of their profession, which is not what you might call ladylike, one would think these birds would become hardened. That, however, is not the case, as there are no touchier guys anywhere than the professional jaw busters.

For instance, somebody told Matty Smith, the Australian lightweight, that Sailor Chadwick had been going around town boasting that if he ever got Smith in a ring the referee would need something more apropriate than a voice to count ten with.

"What did he say the referee would need?" Matty inquired.

"He said the main thing the referee would need was the address and telephone number of a good undertaker," he was told.

"Did he use them exact words," Matty inquired, his dander rising.

When informed that the Sailor had been correctly quoted Matty went around behind the barn and began to bite some hard iron nails that he carries in his pockets to calm himself with whenever he gets hopping mad.

Doesn't that show that these leather pushers are touchy?

Finally, after he had worked off some of his surplus spleen on the nails Matty allowed himself to be interviewed.

"You tell that row boater for me," he said, "that if he really wants to enjoy himself Friday night he had better acquaint himself with the bird language, because he's going to hear plenty of them singing in about the fifth round."

So you see how the case stands between that pair.

Putting all kidding remarks to the one side and getting down to the essentials, it looks like the Smith-Chadwick battle at the Stadium tonight will be about the liveliest knuckle party that was ever staged in this city. Smith has a fine reputation, having cleaned up everything in the lightweight class in the Australian overseas forces. Chadwick, on the other hand, is the acknowledged lightweight champ of China, and those who saw him in action at the last Stadium show know that he has all kinds of class. He demonstrated on that occasion, when he gave Charlie White twenty pounds and then licked him to a frazzle, that he is a pug of the first water.

Both boys will weigh in at about 133, and as both are in fine condition the bout undoubtedly will be a thriller. Both are fast, aggressive fighters, and the fact that the lightweight title of China is at stake will not detract anything from the argument.

In addition to the main bout, an exceptionally strong preliminary card has been arranged, including Knute Hansen, the heavyweight. Knute will box four rounds with Billy Oliverio, the local football star, and this scrap will serve to give the fans a line on Knute, who is frankly an aspirant for Jack Dempsey's title.

The Kid Felix-MacFarlane bout also promises to be a whirlwind affair, and Nick Boyle, who has been working hard, will take on Joe Hart. This will be a good bout.

All in all the bouts tonight will be by far the best yet offered, and ring fans will miss something if they are not there.

GALLOPERS WIN FROM 'COLONIALS;' HAGER HITS FOR 4

Kingman's Men In Fine Shape For Big Series With Japanese

Harry Kingman's hired hands put on a few more finishing touches yesterday in preparation for their forthcoming series with the Japanese baseball champions, a team traveling under the name of "Colonials" being their latest victims. The Colonials, as a matter of fact, are the American School boys, and considering that their team was partly patched up and that their playing season has been over for some time they made a very creditable showing.

Read Hager, the young left hander, was on the hill for the school boys and he held the Gallopers to 9 hits, at the same time collecting a homer for himself that was a beauty. It was quite humiliating to Mr. Maloney to have one of his shoots so grossly mistreated by such a slip of a youth as Hager.

Tomorrow will see the beginning of the big series with the Japanese team from Osaka. The Japanese boys arrived in town yesterday and will be out practicing this afternoon. They are reported to be in fine condition, and confident of taking the locals over the jumps.

Manager Gallop is counting on Taylor to take some of this confidence out of them tomorrow. The game will start at 3 p.m.

S. C. C. Cricketers Defeat The Parsees

The S.C.C. eleven that met the Parsee C.C. yesterday on the former's ground gave them something to think about. They compiled a score of 215 for eight wickets and would not have lost so many had not the batsmen hit out at almost everything.

Dr. Neild was top scorer with 35, W. J. Monk collected 32 and R. E. Andrews 30. The latter looked like getting more but got out in trying to force the pace. Burns ended a brisk afternoon's work with a six and a four off the last two balls sent down.

Seals Found, President Is Released At Tientsin

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 14.—President Li Yuan-hung was released at four this morning. His detention was due to his concubine, who is at present in the French Hospital, declining to give up the five seals entrusted to her keeping without Presidential permission. General Hsueh Chih-hang, the Chief of the Metropolitan Police, endeavored to persuade her to hand over these, but not until she received authority from the President's Tientsin house were these surrendered at 5:10 this morning. The seals are now in the possession of the Cabinet. The Seal Custodians left for Tientsin yesteday evening by special train and obtained the remaining five seals from President Li Yuan-hung.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 14.—President Li Yuan-hung issued a mandate yesterday evening from Tientsin announcing his resignation and saying that the Cabinet should at present carry out all Presidential duties. The President sent telegrams to the same effect to the Cabinet and to Parliament.

A Cabinet meeting this afternoon decided to send out a circular telegram and to issue a mandate announcing President Li Yuan-hung's resignation and the taking over of State functions by the Cabinet.

An informal meeting of Parliament this afternoon decided to meet on Saturday to discuss the Presidential question.

It is reported that the Cabinet Ministers wired requesting General Chang Shou-tseng to return to the Premiership but it is uncertain whether he will return to the post. It is reported that Mr. Kao Ling-wei and others are really against him.

(Reuters Pacific Service)

Peking, June 14.—Mr. Sun Chi-lien, the secretary to the President, in an interview published in the Peking and Tientsin Times, stated on behalf of the President that he particularly wished to emphasise that the handing over of the seals was an involuntary act, the result of application of force.

The telegram which President Li Yuan-hung was compelled to send from Tientsin in which he announced his desire to resign was also written under duress. These two involuntary acts of the part of the President cannot be deemed legal. The President remains President and will continue to be the head of the Republic until Parliament has properly appointed a new head. President Li Yuan-hung is prepared to bow to the wishes of Parliament but to no one else. If Parliament desires him to resign he will do so, or, if it desires him to remain he will do so.

Describing the happenings at the station, Mr. Sun Chi-lien said that agents of the Chihli Party and 1,000 thousand soldiers immediately demanded that the seals be handed over to them, but the President was unable to comply as the seals were in the possession of Madame Li. This was explained to General Wang Chen-ping who personally made the demand. He persuaded the uselessness of resistence and the President eventually authorised telephoning to Madame Li but she thought that there was trickery afoot and refused to hand over the seals. No other course being open, the President's two secretaries were sent in a special train to Peking, in the early hours of the morning, to whom Madame Li handed over the seals.

Even after this the Chihli agents refused to allow the President to proceed to his residence. With General Wang Chen-ping standing over him, President Li Yuan-hung was forced to write a telegram announcing his desire to retire. A second telegram, sent under duress, authorised Mr. Kao Ling-wei and the other Ministers to function as an administration in Peking until a new President is elected. This also was illegal and was countermanded by the President when he arrived at his residence.

Continuing, Mr. Sun Chi-lien said that the President was watching the situation carefully but he does not intend to take further action, merely waiting for Parliament's action.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tientsin, June 14.—President Li Yuan-hung's train was stopped and surrounded by soldiers at the Central Station by the orders of the Civil Governor, General Wang Chen-ping, because it was found that the Presidential seals were missing from Peking. The President explained that he had not got the seals and that they had been left in Peking.

It transpires that Mme. Li took the seals to the French Hospital in the Legation Quarter previous to the President's departure. Apparently the President is being held at the station until the seals are actually located.

Mr. Sun Chi-lien, the secretary to the President, told Reuter's correspondent that the President had not resigned, but was merely visiting Tientsin. He said that the letters which President Li Yuan-hung had sent to Parliament did not contain his resignation.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 13.—The members of the Cabinet, who are in Peking at a meeting this evening decided that, according to the Constitution when there was no President the Premier should take over State affairs, or, failing him, the Foreign Minister, but, as at present neither are in office, the Minister of the Interior should take charge. A telegram is being despatched to the provinces tonight informing them of this decision.

General Wang Hsui-ching has informed Parliament and the Chamber of Commerce that he will be responsible for order in Peking.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 10.—"I will not leave here until my successor is elected by Parliament." This sentence was the keynote of an interview which President Li Yuan-hung gave to a number of foreign correspondents at his private residence this evening.

Attired in a white cotton suit, His Excellency looked very alert and apparently equal to the part which he feels called upon to play at this time. In his front jacket pocket reposed a particularly good type of fountain pen, with small pocket book alongside.

The interview took place in a beautiful tingah perched on a rockery overlooking the tennis court. His Excellency was absolutely master of himself, and was not averse to giving rein to his humor or appreciating a jocular interpellation from his visitors.

The surroundings, however, were not as pleasant externally as internally, for outside the main entrance was a mass of demonstrators carrying white flags and yellow flags. They purported to represent the Citizens' Party and came to urge that payment be made to the troops and to the police. This was not so much an expression of patriotism as an aggregation of twenty coppers worth per individual of embarrassment to the President. In the Presidential Mansion it was stated that the demonstrators had been hired at the cost of twenty coppers per individual.

In spite of this circumstance and the opposition which has reached an acute stage during the past forty-eight hours the President was obviously not downhearted.

After a few words of welcome, the President declared that he would not leave the Presidential chair because he feared that trouble would ensue—not merely trouble between North and South, but trouble in the ranks of the Northerners.

They all had heard something of the character of Parliament—how that some of its members were conscientious and endeavored to work for the welfare of the country, how that others were not, and allowed themselves to be bribed by the militarists. It was the latter who controlled the situation. They controlled Parliament. They controlled the police. They were using their power to coerce the President.

When the President came to Peking six years ago the salaries of the soldiers and the police were paid regularly. Since he left Peking some 700 million dollars of debt had been contracted. It must not be thought, however, that China was without money. We have the revenue from railways, from tobacco and wine taxation from the customs and the salt, not to speak of native likin. There is enough money but the Tuchuns will not remit to Peking, and so the Central Government is financially embarrassed.

No doubt it would be realised that the policemen who went on strike acted under instructions. If they are instructed to go on duty, they do so: if they are instructed to strike they will do so. The police are innocent.

The men who were outside the Presidential Mansion were bribed to come here and demonstrate in order to force the President's resignation. The President, however, will not leave Peking unless Parliament says so.

A correspondent asked if a certain Tuchun achieved his ambition to be elected President by Parliament would His Excellency regard that as a legal election?

His Excellency smiled his assent to that proposition.

Proceeding, the President pointed out that a year ago when the representatives of the Chihli Party came to Tientsin and on their bended knees begged him to take over the administration he refused at first but finally yielded on receiving promises that the tuchunate would be abolished and that superfluous soldiery would be disbanded. His Excellency held proof of these promises, but had they been fulfilled? Not a single thing had been done in support of these promises. Now those men who had besought him to come to Peking were doing their utmost to oust him by mean tricks.

The President did not receive one cent from the Government for his services, although he should draw a salary of $104,000 per month. He was giving his services free.

What about the revenue from Hatamen' Octroi? asked a correspondent.

That, replied His Excellency, is for the staff.

In reply to other questions, His Excellency said that Parliament had decided that his term of office expires on October 10. Probably half of the Members of Parliament were supporters of the President, but the others were not so much to blame inasmuch as they came from the South and the Southwest and were not receiving their allowances regularly, so that it was not surprising that they accepted outside contributions. Even though they accepted bribes he did not think that they would act against their conscience. Besides, the Tuchuns were not generous. They were businesslike. They have managers, and it so happens that the managers squeeze them.

A very strong point was made of the fact that the President's resignation has been in the hands of Parliament for two months, and the fact that Parliament has not acted upon it indicates that Parliament does not wish to elect another. If Parliament wishes His Excellency to leave it is entirely up to them.

Referring to the financial situation, His Excellency said that only about two million dollars cash and three million salt bonds would be required to tide the Government over the Dragon Boat Festival. Four million dollars should have been released from the Customs last week, but had been delayed upon the action of the French minister. The amounts mentioned would suffice to pay a proportion of salaries to the staffs of the Ministries, the troops and the police.

In reply to an inquiry as to wheher any progress had been made in attempting to bridge over the present impasse, the President stated that Mr. Wu, the Speaker of the House, would not consent to form a cabinet until the constitution had been drafted. Dr. Wellington Koo was apparently under military duress and dare not assume cabinet responsibility. Dr. Yen is practically in the same position. It is the aim of the militarists to block the formation of a Cabinet. His Excellency said he was encouraged by the presence of the foreign correspondents and re-affirmed his determination to stand by the principles which he had enunciated.

Then followed a most extraordinary disclosure. His Excellency, in reply to a question, said that he had not yet received promises of moral support from the provinces—there was hardly time for that—but he had issued telegrams to Tsao Kun and Wu Pei-fu asking them how they proposed to handle the political situation which had developed. But his telegrams had been stopped by the Chiaotungpn. Even the telephone in his house were out of order for a time yesterday. He likened himself as surrounded by official bandits—himself isolated on Paotzuku, with not a single soldier to protect him.

President Li was then photographed in the center of the correspondents on his tennis court. A cordial handshake terminated the interview.

FRENCH LANGUAGE NOW FACES CRISIS FROM OVERWORK

Brussels.—There is a crisis in the French language at the present time, says Jean Heurtaut in "L'Independance Belge." The recent additions admitted by the French Academy have caused a good deal of ink to flow. Some say that words from other languages are harmful to the growth of the mother tongue, that foreign words introduced into French papers tend to corrupt French speech. As an example is cited the English word "interview," which does not have precisely the same meaning as the French "entretien." M. Heurtaut grants that "interview" has its place in the language, however, and he is not greatly perturbed by its use.

A language, he says, cannot be killed by the addition of foreign words. The danger lies elsewhere. It lies in the careless use of words by lawyers and speechmakers in general. No doubt there are some among them who love good language and who apply themselves to learn to speak it purely, but the fact remains that many lawyers and politicians use vague, weak, empty words and trite phrases.

Journalists, too, he blames for this crisis in the French language. Many of them do not hunt for the correct word to express that meaning and use the first one that comes into their heads. They also have a tendency to exaggerate, to overstate, in order to be brilliant.

"When we have used our superlatives so much that they are worn out," says M. Huertaut, "we will have no superlatives at all and will have to invent new ones."

America's loveliest dancer-star and leader of fashion, in a gay romance of New York's roaring forties."

As a shy little girl from a convent, she found her mother a "musical comedy queen." Then she began to learn real life!

Lepers Sustained By Hope That Oil May Cure Them

Kalaupapa, Island of Molokai, T. H., By Mail.—A spirit of happiness, almost inconceivable, and a peace that passes the bounds of human understanding, walk with tragedy through the isolated, cliff-guarded, surf-fringed strip of shore that has given this portion of the Hawaiian archipelago the name of "the lonely leper isle of Molokai."

A visitor to the colony, forewarned of the horror it holds, finds all of that horror and more that cannot be discussed. But it finds also that the heavy fog of gloom which once enveloped the tragic, narrow stretch between the sea and the towering cliffs, has been dissipated by a ray of light arising from the favorable results that have attended the use of the Dean chaulmoogra oil specific during the past two years in checking the ravages of the oldest disease in the world. The hope that springs eternal in the human breast is ever present now at Molokai, even in the most advanced cases.

SMILING FACES

The visitor finds faces smiling with a cheerfulness that has conquered affliction. He is greeted everywhere by a hearty, joyful "Aloha," the all-embracing Hawaiian term of salutation, welcome and well-wishing. The eagerness with which the inmates talk to a visitor, and look for long hours upon an unmarred, strange face "from the outside," is pathetic, as is their naive, almost childlike questioning as to whether the visitor may know friends of theirs on "the outside"— in Hilo, Honolulu, Wailuku, Lahaina.

Many of the patients have taken refuge in music—the great solace of the Hawaiian race. They have organised a band and several singing clubs, which vie with each other at song-fests. The performance of one of these clubs—a patients' male octette—supplied a bit of pathos that crops up frequently through the aura of peace. The patients were singing gaily a cheerful Hawaiian song of welcome to the legislators. They were succeeding admirably. Suddenly a mandolin player—young and apparently a newcomer to the colony—who had been gazing with longing into the unscarred faces of the visitors—began weeping. Despite the tears that streamed down his cheeks, he continued, with bravery, as fine as ever seen on any battlefield, to sing the cheerful words of the song, did his best to simulate joy and keep the tears out of his voice.

ANOTHER VIEW

A man of wealth, of power and of influence throughout the territory accompanied the legislators to the island. He made directly for the hospital as soon as he landed from the vessel's small boat. When the main body of the visitors reached the hospital he was sitting beside one of the beds, weeping. The bandaged form upon the bed was his son.

But all is not sorrow at the saddest spot on earth. Some distance from the hospital is a nursery. On the day of the legislators' visit it contained ten unusually healthy looking babies ranging from two weeks to five months in age. They gurgled, smiled and laughed, and shook tiny, chubby fists at the visitors. Although one or both of their parents are afflicted with leprosy, the most searching examination possible has failed to show a trace of the disease in any one of the children, or to scores of others who have been born to patients at the settlement. The children are cared for by the territory. They are kept at the settlement until they reach the age of six months, when they are taken to Honolulu and placed in a home maintained by the government.

The apparent contentment of the inmates of the colony and their fear of leaving the spot that has been "home to many of them for years unless they are paroled owing to beneficial results of injections of the chaulmoogra oil specific, shattered to bits a tentative proposal that the settlement be closed and the inmates moved to some location more easy of access. The visit of the legislature made certain that the tragedy of the lives of the lepers would continue to be enacted upon a stage of marvelous natural scenic beauty and would not be transferred.

No man who has seen what was once called "the home of the living death" is quite the same man thereafter.

To cheer the patients the legislators brought many gifts, toys & many packages from friends and relatives "on the outside." A Hawaiian orchestra from Honolulu played and sang and danced the hula for the amusement of the inmates, who made their enjoyment patent by much applause. At an assembly the legislators delivered addresses to the afflicted, messages of hope and inspiration, and listened to complaints. Practically the only request made was by the blind inmates, who asked that they be granted a monthly allowance of $5 each for pocket money, because they are unable to work as do patients whose general health is such that they are still allowed to work for government wages.

THE COLONY

The number of patients here now is 399, composed of 263 males and 136 females. Racially the groups contain—Belgian, 1; Chinese, 14; Filipinos, 12; Germans, 2; Hawaiian, 239; part-Hawaiian, 83; Japanese, 10; Portuguese, 27; Porto Rican, 3; Korean, 8. There are 35 non-leprous employes at the colony; ten non-leprous children of leprous parents and 35 other nonleprous residents.

The colony occupies only a slight portion of the island of Molokai, on which also is situated the lands where the Hawaiian Homes Commission is attempting to establish farms in an effort to rehabilitate the Hawaiian race. Kalaupapa is on the windward or northern side of the island, on the peninsula of Makanalua, cut off from the remainder of the island by the steep cliffs on three sides, with a sea that is never smooth on the fourth side.

As the legislators' vessel, which had remained more than a mile from the shore, while the visitors landed through a precarious and treacherous surf from small boats, weighed anchor in preparation for departure, the inmates of the colony, gathered on the little dock, sang, to the music of their band, "Aloha oe"—"Farewell to thee," —until the ship, gathering speed, passed out of the range of their voices.

Sir John Jordan Is Pessimistic On Opium Situation

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 13.—Interviewed on his return from Geneva, Sir John Jordan was pessimistic with regard to the opium situation as far as China was concerned. He declared that she seemed to be going back to the bad old state of affairs before the agreement was effected with India. In his opinion Britain was entitled to ask China what she was going to do to put her house in order if we were going honestly to put an end to opium-smoking in "overseas China," the East Indies, and elsewhere.

California To Revive Historic Pony Express

San Francisco, June 11.—The conquest of time and space through three-quarters of a century will be depicted in an elaborate revival of the historic California pony express and in transcontinenal races between automobiles, trains and airplanes, all of which are scheduled to finish at a mammoth pageant in San Francisco, on California admission day, September 10.

This announcement was made here recently by the San Francisco delegation to a conference of representatives from seven western states in Denver, called to organise the pony express memorial association and plan for a relay race between St. Joseph, Mo., and San Francisco, over the route of the original pony express.

Revival of the pioneer spirit in the west through the medium of the pony express was the object of the Denver conference. The original plan was confined to instituting as an annual event a 2,000-mile pony express race, but, according to Sidney Peixotto, San Francisco, one of the sponsors of the project, it is propable that this plan will be elaborated to include an exposition in this city on the evolution of transportation, the exposition to open with the arrival of the various relay "teams" and continue for a fortnight. The different means of transportation will be so spaced, according to their comparative speed, that the finish of all the races will be in San Francisco on the same day.

According to the schedule arranged, the first of the ponies and the riders will leave St. Joseph, Mo., probably on August 29. In pioneer days the route covered by the riders ended in Sacramento, and from that city the mail was brought to San Francisco by Sacramento river boat. In the revival, however, a new relay will start at Sacramento and follow a course leading through the historic country of the Mother Lode into Oakland, and by ferry to the "end of the trail."

Vienna Given Over To Land Speculation

Vienna, June 4.—Vienna is showing remarkable adaptability, during these days of reconstruction and change, and in more than one municipal office the musty records and business system that reminded a visitor of the methods of the middle ages have given place to broad, flat-topped desks, card index systems, typewriters, and a flock of alert young women who have time for nothing but business, in business hours.

Take real estate. There has been an orgy of speculation. Of the 43,700 buildings in Vienna, 21,000 have changed owners since the armistice, some of them over and over again. One piece changed hands ten times inside of 18 weeks. The whole city has been crazy to exchange depreciated crowns into real estate, and prices went up tremendously. In one instance a seller received 6,000 times the prewar price for his dwelling. Even the members of the old aristocracy lost their heads and sold property right and left.

And Vienna is filled with foreign buyers. One Italian owns more property in the city than any single Austrian, and the landlords are a cosmopolitan crowd, including even an East Indian.

In the old days the city real estate and transfer office was housed in two rooms, lined to the ceiling with leather bound records. Today it occupies 18 large rooms, and does more business in a day than the old office did in a year. The city collects transfer taxes at the rate of 60 percent, a circumstance which diverts a very satisfctory income to the municipal treasury.

Norway Forced To Lower Barriers Against Wine

London, June 11.—American prohibition athorities have their troubles, but as yet the United States has not been subjected to foreign dictation on the wet or dry issue. Norway, one of the few European countries to try the prohibition experiment, has not been able to remain master in her own dry house. By signing a trade agreement prohibition Norway captulated to wine-produring Portugal. Portuguese wines are to be allowed free import into Norway.

British liquor interests are heartened by the return of Norway to the category of wet countries. There still is hope in some quarters that America will repent, take to light wines and beers again, and eventually to Scotch and English whiskey.

But American officials point out there is little parallel between America and Norway on the prohibition issue. Norway's capitulation was economic. Whatever the state of mind of the hardy Scandinavians regarding prohibition, economic rather than moral asses caused the renewal of liquor irports. It was a victory of the dark red wines of Portugal over the dried codfish of Norway.

Dried codfish is one of the main sources of wealth which Norway has for sale abroad, and Portugal exports wine. Prohibition in Norway hurt Portugal, until she finally refused to buy codfish unless Norway resumed drinking her wines. Portugal won.

Swedes Yearn For America

Stockholm, June 11.—"America fever" again has broken out in various parts of Sweden, according to statistical reports. This term is applied by the opponents of emingration to the yearnings of young men and women to seek their fortunes in the United States.

More than one thousand persons left Sweden for America during January and February of this year as against fewer than three hundred for the same period last year. Virtually all of these emigrants are well supplied with funds to cover their traveling expenses, and most of them have relatives who will help them out when they arrive.

Sweden's quota under the United States immigration law is about 20,000 per year.

INFANTILE INDIGESTION

If Your Child Is A Sufferer Use Baby's Own Tablets.

Indigestion in infants and young children is caused by errors in diet, frequently by over-feeding. The best treatment is the administration of Baby's Own Tablets to clear away the offending matter and sweeten the stomach. Proper attention to the diet will do the rest.

Mrs. Thomas Lawrence, Collingwood. Ontario, Canada, writes: "My baby had indigestion, and although she had a ravenous appetite, food did her no good and she grew thinner and thinner. She would scream with the pain in her stomach, and as she was also troubled with constipation we were at times afraid we would lose her. I tried several medicines but they did her no good. Then I tried Baby's Own Tablets, and as a result her digestion improved, food does her good and she is growing plump. I think the Tablets are a fine medicine for a baby."

GLENLEVEN WHISKY

AGENTS GRANDE PRICE LTD

THE OLDEST DISTILLERS IN THE WORLD.

THE CHINA GENERAL OMNIBUS CO., LTD.

The above named Company is issuing a Prospectus inviting subscriptions for 47,500 ordinary shares of Tls. 10 each payable as to Tls. 5 on Application and as to Tls. 5 on Allotment. The Prospectus states, among other things, as follows:

"The object for which this Company is being formed is to establish and operate a service of Motor Omnibusses in Shanghai and the surrounding district for the purpose of providing the public with additional and comfortable means of transport. The Council have intimated to the Promoters that in the interests of the Ratepayers they view the proposed inauguration and operation of Motor Omnibusses with favor, as being a probable means of relieving the present congestion of traffic in the main streets of the Settlement, and that they are prepared to give every facility to the Company provided the Company continues to use very means in its power to give efficient service and comfortable transport to the public of Shanghai. The Council have sanctioned the operation of Motor Busses over ten routes but should it be found advisable in the interests of the public to vary such routes or to extend them, the assent of the Council is assured."

The Company proposes at the outset to purchase a fleet of 30 Motor Omnibusses, of the best and most modern type procurable. The Company's technical representative will at once visit England and America with this object and he will at the same time engage the services of an expert Traffic Superintendent and a Maintenance Superintendent so that the requirement of the Public may be served by officials of adequate and long experience in order to ensure that the operation of the proposed Service shall be as perfect as skilled experience can achieve.

"It is the Company's intention to provide the public with rapid, smooth, regular and comfortable transport at a moderate cost, and it will be the Company's aim to prevent overcrowding and to provide every passenger with a seat.

"The maximum fare permitted by the Council is ten cents per mile for 1st Class accommodation and five cents per mile for 2nd Class accommodation.

"The average length of one Route or single trip is 2.4 miles. The maximum average earnings permitted by the Council tariff are $4.90 per bus per trip. The Company anticipates that no first class fare on any route now authorised will exceed 20 cents or second class fare 10 cents. On this basis if running full time the average earning per Bus per trip will be $4.10.

"Very carefully considered estimates have been drawn up wherein provision has been made for the Busses to operate 12 hours per day carrying only 50 percent of the maximum seating accommodation; the maximum first class fare has been based on a charge of 5 cents per mile and the maximum second class fare on a charge of five cents per trip, the total average earning capacity of each Bus being taken at $1.18 per trip.

"The busy or rush periods when the Busses will be full have, for the purpose of this calculation, been entirely ignored.

"On a Capital of Tls. 500,000 the amount of the proposed first issue covering the purchase and operation of a fleet of 30 Motor Busses of the most modern design operating on four routes only, and after allowing for all running expenses, and for half the fixed or overhead charges, which have been estimated to cover 10 Routes the investment shows a profit of 1 1½ per cent per annum.

"Negotiations are in progress with the Council for permission to operate Motor Busses on Special Routes for Special Purposes and it is hoped in time to be able to serve the public in the evening by providing special Busses running from Residential Districts to the Theaters, Cinemas, etc.

"With the rapid development of the outlying districts of Shanghai the possibilities of the Company's future activities are almost unlimited. The Promoters are convinced that the Shanghai public will readily welcome the inauguration of this new means of transportation and it will be the Company's constant aim to cater for public requirements and to furnish such good service that demands for extensions of the service will be made within a very short period."

Copies of the full Prospectus and form of Application can be obtained at the office of Company, 6 Kiukiang Road or from the Company's Solicitors, White-Cooper, Master and Harris, 1 Museum Road or from Messrs. Beniamin & Pott, Brokers, 11 Jinkee Road.

This notice is not to be regarded as an invitation to the public to subscribe for shares and application will only be received on the footing of the full Prospectus and in the form issued therewith.

Publishers Bring Action Against Former Employe

An interesting case for damages alleged to have been suffered by an employer at the hands of an ex-employee by means of a circular claimed to have been sent out to the employer's clients was heard throughout yesterday at the British Supreme Court before Judge Sir Skinner Turner.

The parties were the China and Far Eastern Finance and Commerce, plaintiffs, and J. R. Calder, at present employed by L. Moore and Co., Ltd., defendant. Mr. R. F. C. Master represented the plaintiffs and Mr. Tycho Wing and Mr. Anderson the defendant.

The suit was one for damages for $5,000 and for damages for trespass and for conversion of certain duplicates of contracts to the defendant's own use.

Mr. Master, in opening his case, said that the plaintiffs were the proprietors of "Finance and Commerce," a weekly trade newspapor of considerable importance to merchants and of a yearly publication called the "Finance and Commerce Year Book." The defendant entered the employment of the company as business representative of their advertising department in April, 1921 and continued until November 30, 1922, when he resigned. Through the agency of the defendant a large number of advertisements for the year book and the newspaper were obtained. The profits from these advertisements constituted a very important part of the plaintiffs' revenue. These advertisement contracts were made out in duplicates and were always treated as the property of the publishers. According to the terms of the contracts these were renewable at the same rate of payment unless intimation was given by either party in writing six months prior to the renewal date. On January 5 last the defendant wrote, inquiring when he would receive his commission of 25 percent on the business automatically renewed in the next issue of the year book, and suggested that half the commission should be paid to him on July 1, 1923 and the balance on January 1, 1924, the official publication date of the year book.

Mr. Master mentioned that Mr. Pratt, part proprietor of the publication, absolutely refused to consider any such claim for commission earned after the date of his resignation, namely November 30, 1922. He, however, told him that he would communicate with Mr. Dingle on the matter, and on February 21 last the defendant wrote to Mr. Pratt again inquiring whether the latter had heard from Mr. Dingle and requesting him to cable to Mr. Dingle. That letter went on to say: "Failing receipt of a favorable reply by March 1, I will take steps to remind my clients of the six months' notice clause in the contracts I induced them to sign and no doubt most of them will take advantage of same, in which case you may give someone else an opportunity of earning the commission."

Continuing, Mr. Master stated that at the time the defendant left the plaintiffs' service no mention was made by him of any claim to commission on renewed advertisements, which Calder was not entitled to at all. Furthermore, Mr. Calder had taken out of the plaintiffs' possession duplicate advertising contracts for the year book of 1921-1922 and 1922-1923, without the plaintiffs' authority or consent. He had also failed to deliver such duplicates although a demand was made in writing.

Mr. Calder, Mr. Master mentioned, had sent through the post a circular to the various firms with whom contracts were entered into by the plaintiffs, in the following terms: "Attached hereto is a duplicate copy of the contract covering your advertisement in the 1922-1923 issue of the 'Finance and Commerce Year Book.' You are reminded that this advertisement will be renewed on the same terms, in the next issue of the Year Book, unless you give notice of cancellation before July 1, 1923."

The circulars were sent out maliciously and anonymously with the intent the firms to whom they were addressed should believe that they had been sent out by the plaintiffs. The circulars were distributed in the early part of March last and were in direct pursuance, Mr. Master submitted, to the threat contained in the defendant's letter of February 21 last. Counsel went on to state that the firms that received these circulars were greatly annoyed, and that the defendant knew that the probable effect of such circulars would be to cause the plaintiffs to suffer in their credit, reputation and business and also damage by the withdrawal of advertisements. In consequence of those circulars a large number of firms to whom these were sent had withdrawn their advertisements. Mr. Master stated that a list of these firms was given in the statement of claim. His Lordship had, on the application of the plaintiffs already granted an interim injunction restraining Calder from publishing and distributing circulars purporting to be published and distributed by the plaintiffs, and for delivery of all duplicate advertising contracts between the plaintiffs and others.

The defense set out a number of denials to the plaintiffs' story. It stated that the defendant handed the duplicates of the contracts to the parties in pursuance of his duty. It recited: "If (as is denied) the defendant distributed copies of the alleged circulars the defendant did so not otherwise than to persons and or corporations who had entered into the said alleged contracts in reliance upon the advice of the defendant."

Mr. Master said that Messrs. Bradley and Co., for instance, had written cancelling their advertisement as a result of this circular. There were quite a number of these advertisers who did likewise, and witnesses would be called to substantiate to this. The new Advertising Manager had gone round to the people who had cancelled, and when the matter was explained to some of them, a renewal for another year was secured.

The Judge: Is it admitted that the circular was sent out by the defendant?

Mr. Master: I think it is admitted. I am prepared to prove that a circular was sent to Mr. Pratt enclosed in an envelope with his card signed "with compliments of J. R. Calder."

Mr. Wing: It is denied in the pleadings.

Mr. Master continued to state that the duplicate advertising contracts were never in any one's possession except the plaintiffs.

Mr. Master: In September, 1922, the defendant went to Tientsin and handed over to the plaintiffs' secretary a quantity of duplicate advertising contracts which she put into her drawer. We do not know when they were taken out of our office, but they were sometime or other extracted from our drawer. We did not miss them until this circular was sent. Sometime we shall show—the inference must be—that the defendant took them from our possession. He may have taken them on his return from Tientsin or when he was in our employ. He came to us once or twice after he resigned. If he took them then it was deliberate trespass and by taking the contracts from our possession it was direct stealing.

Youth Has Won 54 Scout Medals

THOMAS W. McConville, of Washington, D. C., is the greatest all-around American Boy Scout, wearing on his sleeve 54 of the merit badges awarded by the organization. The 17-year-old youth joined Troop 100 in 1917 and won his first merit badge, for handicraft, in 1919. In 1920 he became a Life and Star Scout and immediately started working for the highest scout honor, that of Eagle Scout, which he attained in September, 1920.

If he had taken them from our possession before he resigned I still say there was trespass, and in addition, conversion by the improper use to him of the contracts, which he had no right to do. If he had sent those circulars in direct pursuance of the threat contained in his letter of February 21, 1923 to us, then he knew that the consequences of so doing would be that a number of people would cancel their contracts. It is the duty of the manager to call round upon the advertisers to get their contracts renewed. You do not send a letter of this description holding a pistol, but you go round requesting a favorable renewal. If a polite call is made on the advertiser he would renew his advertisement. They felt annoyed that a publication like "Finance and Commerce" should treat them in this way.

The Judge: If that is the case the practice in your office has been to treat these contracts as practically of no value?—It may have been our practice in our office to do so but it does not mean that they are of no value. The advertising manager deals with all these matters. Supposing that Hanley was captured by the bandits and held for sometime then they would be of value. If the defendant sets up a right in the advertisers he cannot set up a right in a third party like the plaintiffs. Plaintiffs say that the defendant has committed trespass in taking these documents from their possession they are entitled to damages. He has made improper use of these documents by using them in a manner exercising dominion over them, in a manner which is adverse to our rights, and for that we are entitled to damages and the return of the contracts. We are entitled to damages for trespass and for conversion, not only for the mere value of the documents themselves but damages in the way of punitive damages owing to the malice of the defendant by using them in this way with the intent to damage us. In the ordinary way, we are entitled to more than the ordinary damages.

The Judge: You say that malice is the proper construction of the letter of February?

Mr. Master: He must have known that if the advertisers received this circular they would cancel their advertisements. It is a difficult job nowadays to get advertisements. It requires a good deal of silver-tongue persuasion, and no doubt a number of people would welcome the opportunity to cancel their advertisements. Defendant must have known that would be the effect of that circular.

The Judge: They might cancel them without the circular, what then?

Mr. Master: A number of them have not. When the advertisements expired they would automatically be renewed under that clause in the contract unless six months' notice was given by either side.

Mr. F. Lionel Pratt, one of the proprietors and acting Managing Editor of "Finance and Commerce," testified that he had been connected with the paper since 1920. The Year Book first came out in 1922 in January. Calder entering their employ in April, 1921 with no written contract. His business was to collect the advertisements for the newspaper and the Year Book, and a commission of 25 percent was given him on the Year Book advertisements and 20 percent on the newspaper. For renewals on old advertisements a commission of ten percent was given.

Asked whether for a trade newspaper his circulation was good, Mr. Pratt answered in the affirmative.

Mr. Wing: This part of the case rests on the actual damages and anything not flowing from the act when the alleged circular was sent out and the loss sustained by reason of a customer seceding should not be relevant.

The Judge: As far as this particular question is concerned circulation is an important point, I would imagine.

Mr. Wing: I think it is auxiliary. I would refuse to have this evidence of circulation going in.

The objection was sustained.

Mr. Pratt explained the procedure in the office with regard to the original and duplicates of the contracts, which he said were turned over to the accountant and kept in the office. When approached by the defendant after the latter had resigned about the commission the witness said he would not admit it. His impression of the letter of February last written by the defendant was calculated to damage the concern.

Mr. Master: How many cancellations did you receive?

Mr. Wing objected thus: My Lord, if any action here lies at all which I shall show later on that it does not, could only be an action on case. If your Lordship will look at the pleadings your Lordship will notice there is no allegation at all of a general fall of business. The allegations in the plaint refer to certain specific contracts for the loss of which they claim. I submit that the plaintiff should be confined to this particular and it must be in respect to the loss sustained. He cannot stray into general loss.

The Judge: The question is, how many cancellations did you receive? If it is any case it is an action for Tort.

Mr. Wing: There are really two distinct cases. There is an action for conversion and an action on the case for which he sustained a loss in business. It is an action on the case. Being an action on a case then it is only on general damages that he could claim.

The Judge: The question is this. You say that he has in this case confined at the moment to the actual damages he has sustained. Is he not entitled to say how many advertisements were actually cancelled to his knowledge in consequence of this circular?

Mr. Wing: I put it like this: Provided his answer confined himself to those people whose names have been pleaded.

The Judge: I should have looked at it like this for the moment. That list of names is something in the nature of special damages.

Mr. Wing: We agree respectfully if your Lordship will look at the pleading it does not plead a general fall of business. It pleads for general damages.

Mr. Master: I will put my question to the plaintiff in another way. What is the amount you have lost by the cancellation of these advertisements?

The Judge: Your position, Mr. master, on the damage question is this. This is an action for tort and in addition to that you are entitled to general damages. Mr. Wing's position is that you are not entitled to general damages. Is that correct?

Mr. Master: Yes, that is so.

The Judge to Mr. Pratt: Can you from this list of losses give the total value of the advertisements which have been cancelled

FLEAS

The flea is a small, reddish-brown insect notable for its ability to bite, its extreme agility and hard, highly polished shell-like substance of its body. These are many species, those infesting animals being different from the human flea (pules irritans).

Fleas as a rule prefer certain hosts—including man. This is one reason that makes them dangerous parasites so far as plague and other infections are concerned.

In addition, fleas act as intermediate hosts for certain tape-worms, and doubtless are the mechanical or biological carriers of other infections. Nicolle incriminates the flea in typhus fever.

Dogs and cats, badly infested with fleas, and unable to withstand the itching caused by the flea-bites, suffer from so called "fits." Constant scratching develops numerous sores on various parts of their bodies, resulting in skin disorders, the most common being classified as mange. Cows and horses are likewise attacked by certain varieties of fleas. Far better than flea "soaps" etc., is FLYOSAN which can be sprayed directly on the animal and will instantly kill every flea and alleviate and soothe the inflamed condition of its skin. FLYOSAN will exterminate bed-bugs and house fleas.

Remember to buy a tin of "FLYOSAN" for your dogs.

Shanghai College Has Its Commencement Week

Commencement Week opened at Shanghai College on Sunday with a Baccalaureate service for the largest Senior class in the history of the College. The College celebrates the fifteenth anniversary of its founding this week, and there will be special exercises, especially on the last two days, Friday and Saturday. Friday will be Class Day and Alumni Day, when the Alumni of other Christian colleges as well as as of Shanghai will gather on the beautiful green campus on the bank of the Whangpoo river. The Commencement exercises will be on Saturday afternoon.

In speaking to the Seniors on Sunday morning, Dr. Potter took for his subject the Temptation of Jesus, which as it came at the beginning of His career, who is the example and inspiration of each one of the Senior class men would form a suitable subject for their meditation on this occasion.

BEGINNING NOT END

"Commencement," said the speaker, "comes at the end of a college course, because every end is a beginning; and the end of the college course is the beginning of your career. There are doubtless mixed feelings of sadness and joy. For some temperaments, as they thing of the parting with friends, classmates, the old familiar halls and grounds, there will come tears: for others there will be nothing but unbounded joy. I can remember the class day oration of a classmate of mine, which began with the words: 'All hail, auspicious day!' For still others this is a day of fear, as a young man wrote to me, who said: 'I face the cold world with nothing but a college diploma.'

"Jesus at the beginning of his career was tempted or tested as to the quality of his character. The finer the character, the subtler the temptation, for no one gets beyond temptation. The occasion of the temptation was the consciousness of power that had just come to him, when the voice of God said that he was the son of God. The three temptations represent the appeals made respectively by the flesh, religion and ambition. The appeal of the flesh said: Use your power to feed yourself. The appeal of religion said: Use God's power to astonish and win the people. The appeal of personal ambition said: Use the devil to gain the kingdoms of the world.

MADE NO COMPROMISE

"Jesus met the testing of his character, not by yielding to these temptations, but by working out the principles on which he would live his life; saying: My powers are not to gratify myself, but I will use them to help others. Trust in God is not a discharge from hard work, as the devil tried to persuade him. 'I will trust God as though all depended on Him; I will work as though all depended on myself.' And lastly, compromise with the world is not the way to rule it. Uncompromising loyalty and unswerving obedience to the will of God is the sure way to the throne.

"Never once did Jesus swerve from these principles of life which he worked out in the wilderness solitude. When Peter tempted him, wishing for him a safe and easy life; when the multitudes wanted to make him king; and when he stood at last with his hands bound behind him before the judgment seat of Pilate, he held on to these principles. All because of something inside of him, the might in the inward win, which was an unbreakable integrity that gave him a settled determination to do right though the heavens fall.

CANNOT ESCAPE TEST

"Members of the class of Nineteen twenty-three:—You cannot escape the test question on this occasion, what is the quality of your character? The quality will appear in your answer as to the use of power, your own power God's power, the devil's. Will you speculate on them, exploit them for your own advantage, extract an illegitimate profit from them; or will you take the line Jesus took when he faced the same question? There are no other alternatives.

"Either you can use your capacities to secure personal comfort and selfish pleasure; you can take God's pledged protection as a license to allow yourself to drift along, saying, God will take care of me; you can attempt to win your place in the world by consent to its principles, by scheming, by forming a partnership with the devil: or, mark the contrast. Or you can say, I'd rather starve to death in my integrity than have a full stomach by misappropriating a trust.

"Be sure of this: angels are not available to help shirkers and sluggards. The law stands: 'In the sweat of thy brow thou shalt eat bread.' Be sure of this: one violation of conscience, though done in secret, one act of compromise, one minute of reliance on fraud or intrigue, one evasion of clear principle, these can never be paid for though all the kingdoms of the world and the glory of them be gained by it.

WHAT IS WORLD PRAISE?

Be a successful schemer, and the world will ring with applause of your success; but what compensation is the praise of men to a man who knows he has corrupted his character to win it? What shall it profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his life?

"In conclusion, I ask you young men: What are you going to do about it? In the first place, think through and settle forever the principles on which you will live your life. You may do this today. Bring yourself up sharply. Let the pure flame of Christ's spirit shrival and consume all the tinsel of falsehood which you may have taken on as a decoration, and be forever content with the gold, silver, and precious stones of everlasting truth and right.

"Secondly: Remember that he who won his fight won it for us also. Having been tempted in all points like as we are, he is able to sympathise and to succor. Thirdly: let every temptation then remind you of his presence, and cry to him: 'Lord of the wilderness solitude, King of the ages, thou Prince of all the kings of the earth, keep me true.'"

Smaller Rooms Reduce Demand For Carpets

Berlin, June 11.—As Germans moved into smaller living quarters, because of high rentals, the need for floor coverings declined proportionately. At the same time prices continued high on account of the heavy import duties on raw materials, and out of both these conditions there resulted a buyers' strike. People dispensed with new carpets, or got along with what they had before.

Now carpet prices have fallen from one-third to one-half, but even so a domestic covering nine by twelve feet costs the equivalent of $100, and there are few buyers.

All household furnishings bring good prices today in Germany, and many former officials of the old government have sold their apartment leases and furnishings for enough money to pay their way to some distant part of the world where life is begun anew.

Scientist Makes Wood From Corncobs

PROFESSOR Elton R. Darling, of Millikin University, Bloomington, Illinois, has produced synthetic wood, sugar and other valuable products from otherwise wasted corncobs. The wood, which will not crack, can stand a strain of 10,000 pounds to the square inch. He also makes xylan from the corncobs. This gummy substance is used in the manufacture of dyes and can be converted into syrup, which, when mixed with alfalfa, becomes valuable as a food for cattle. Furfurol, which he also extracts, was hitherto produced at a cost of $35 a pound, but it will now cost only a few cents. It is used in the manufacture of vulcanised rubber.

in the way you describe?—Roughly Tls. 3,195, Hk. $1,760 and Yen 90.

Mr. Master: As your Lordship has indicated I am not relying on this figure.

The Judge: I suppose you are prepared to say that this is the minimum you are prepared to accept?—I am quite prepared to accept that figure.

Mr. Pratt read letters received from firms like the Siberian Agricultural Company, Messrs. Mackinnon, Mackenzie and Co. who had withdrawn their advertisements. He added that he had received cancellations from all the firms mentioned in the list.

Mr. Master: Do you consider this a proper statement to be sent out on behalf of your paper?—I consider it a very rude letter. I would most certainly not have sent out such a thing.

Cross-examined by Mr. Wing: What do you think is rude about it?—I think the wording is rude and abrupt.

It is a mere statement of fact. It has not a word of rudeness?—We do not write such letters. It is not in accordance with the usual business courtesy.

Do you say that the Siberian Agricultural Company withdrew their advertisement because of that memorandum?—They say so in their letter.

The circular, you will agree, calls their attention to a term in their contract with you?—Undoubtedly.

Do you object to their attention being called?—I object to any one not connected with my business sending out circulars to my clients.

Would it hurt them to have their attention called to it?—If it was not done in a right manner.

Tre Siberian Agricultural Company, at all events, did not say that they are offended by the letter?—Their letter does say so.

You say in your pleadings that the people who received that circular were seriously annoyed?—Yes.

These letters, at all events, you have put in do not express serious annoyance?—Apparently not.

These people to whom these circulars were sent they were all of them people who got their contracts from the defendant?—Yes.

And you do not suggest that he sent that circular to anybody except to most of those he brought?—To all the advertisers he brought.

You say that these contracts were made out in duplicates and you retained both parts in your office?—Yes.

And advertisers were never going to get any of the parts?—Unless they applied for them.

These contracts were made out in the ordinary way that in the ordinary course each party should have one?—I do not agree.

And when you handed all these duplicates to Calder from time to time to time was that he might hand them over to the other party?—Emphatically no.

I put it to you that these contracts that were made out the duplicates never came to you?—The duplicates were returned to us and kept in the office in our possession, even when he returned from Tientsin and Hongkong. He had no discretion as to whom he had to hand the contracts.

I put it to you that while he was in your employ all connection between you and your advertisers was through Calder, and it was entirely a matter of his management as regards bringing people and handling contracts?—The obtaining of advertisements was his business and for which he was paid.

Mr. S. G. Drakeford was called and he testified as regard the circular received by him as follows: I would describe the sending of the circular as vindictive.

The defendant went into the witness box in the afternoon. Replying to a number of questions put to him by his counsel, Mr. Tycho Wing, defendant stated that he had the contract signed in duplicates and originals, and these he handed or forwarded to the plaintiffs. The duplicate copies he retained with the consent of the plaintiffs for delivery to the contracting parties at his discretion and at any time when the duplicate copies were asked for.

Most of these remained in your possession. How did you deliver them to the other contracting parties? There was no particular arrangement made. It was left to my discretion. Sometime I delivered them when I called for a renewal of the contracts.

On what principle did you exercise that discretion?—That I thought they would be useful to me at a future date. I then retained them for a future day.

LINER NANKING SEIZED BY U. S. TO PAY CLAIMS

San Francisco, by mail.—The China Mail steamer Nanking was seized May 7 by the United States Government in satisfaction of creditors' claims said to aggregate $30,000. Fifty-two Chinese steerage passengers, parked in the hold of the vessel, presented a problem, owing to the refusal of the immigration authorities to permit them to land.

Financial troubles of the owning company, which is undergoing reorganisation, led to the tying up of the Nanking a month ago, following its arrival from the Orient. Various narcotic shipments seized on the vessel have made the company liable for approximately $500,000 in accrued fines, due the customs authorities.

The fines levied against the vessel are unpaid, pending an appeal to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon at Washington. The Shell Oil Company libeled the vessel several days ago for $10,000 and claims were filed fof the Union Trust Company and Schirmir Stevedoring Company.

At the request of attorneys for the company, the United States took charge of the steamer in satisfaction of claims against the Nanking, discharged the crew and started it back to China under court order, issued by Federal Judge Partridge. The sum of $3,750 was paid for the crew's return on board the President Cleveland.

The ship is in charge of United States Marshal James P. Holohan and his deputies.

Japan To Send More Warships To Quell Boycotters

Peking, June 13.—In connection with the boycott movement at Changsha, Mr. Chang Yuan-chih, Charge d'Affaires at Tokio, has telegraphed to the Waichiaopu, stating that the Japanese Government not only refuses to order the withdrawal of the gunboats from Changsha but declares that more war ships will be dispatched to China, in view of the unsettled situation.

Reports from Changsha indicate that the boycott movement is on the wane, owing to the drastic action taken by the provincial authorities.

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, June 9.—The anti Japanese tension in Changsha is easing off with the opening of all shops and school after the general strike following the boycott fracas. The Japanese residents in Changsha probably will not evacuate the city as they are accorded adequate protection by the local authorities.

It is learned from official sources that Tokio will make sincere efforts to curb the anti-Japanese movement, and the Japanese government may find it necessary to reinforce the Japanese patrol force on the Yangtsze Valley and take effective steps for self-protection. No decision has yet been reached, but it is highly possible that Japan will take some drastic measure, should the present hostile movement persist.

The local Japanese Consul-General has received numerous reports from Japanese residents in the interior, and particularly from the districts along the Han River, that the Chinese are doing all they can to molest the Japanese, with the threat that they should withdraw in a body from the interior. The Hupeh authorities have promised to take remedial steps. So far practically nothing has been done, and the Japanese are insisting that Japanese should be given the Chinese protection they are entitled to by treaty right.

The Japanese Consul-General has made several verbal statements to the Tuchun and the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs of Hankow to the effect that it is up to the Chinese authorities to protect Japanese residents in China, intimating that Japan will surely take some unwelcome action when her patience expires.

Ningpo Notes

(China Press Correspondence)

Ningpo, June 10.—The Ningpo Local "Y" will start many Daily Vocation Bible Schools in different schools and churches of Ningpo, on July first.

The teachers of these schools are all of the students of the Missionary Boys' Schools and Girls' Schools, their fees for running are contributed by some foreigners and Chinese in Ningpo, the organisation and curriculum are adopted from world's D. V. B. S. System.

Before the school opens, there is a normal class held in the local "Y," which helps the teachers to have a general idea. The leaders of the class include: Mr. H. C. Fong, of the Ningpo Social Center; Mr. P. D. Zee, of the local "Y;" Mr. M. C. Cheng, of the Ningpo Junior Middle School; Mrs. Chu, of the Ningpo Presbyterian Girls' School; Miss Wu and Miss Ling, of the Sarah Bachelor Memorial School.

The members of the Ningpo Women's Christian Temperance Union held a parade procession on June 8, at 4 o'clock, through the city with 400 attendants. During the parade, they distributed different pamphlets and gave a soap-box oratory to passersby.

This Union is organised by the Ningpo Riverside Academy, the Sarah Bachelor Memorial School, the Ningpo Presbytertan Girls' School and some foreign women in the post. The chairman is Miss Z. S. Chin, of the Ningpo Riverside Academy. The Union aims to exhort people to abstain licentiousness, gambling, smoking, and drinking. Many girls and women in Ningpo subscribed their membersship.

House Of Bishops Seeks To Revise Psalms Of David

London, June 11.—Drastic changes and elusions in the vivid Psalms of David in the Book of Common Prayer are recommended by the special committee of the House of Bishops which has been sitting in solemn conclave on the subject for many months. The alterations, if sanctioned by the National Assembly of the Church of England, will constitute an alternative text of the psalms, to be used at the discretion of ministers. The proposed revision of the prayer book includes also the shortening of the ten commandments and the alteration of the marriage service.

The psalmist's vision of unforgetable doom for the ungodly is radically modified. Psalm 58 is to be omitted altogether. It contains such expressions as:

"Break their teeth, O God, in their mouths, let them fall away like water that runneth apace. Let them consume away like a snail. The righteous shall rejoice when he seeth the vengeance; he shall wash his footsteps in the blood of the ungodly."

Verses are to be left out from eight other psalms, and in each case the sentiments are for death and condemnation, as, for example, in psalm 68, verse 23: "That thy foot may be dipped in the blood of thine enemies; and that the tongue of the dog may be red through the same," and in psalm 109, verses 9 and 10: "Let his children be fatherless and his wife a widow. Let his children be vagabonds and beg their bread."

No fewer than 346 alterations are suggested in the wording of the verses of various psalms. A comparison of the revised version with the old text in a selection of these alterations is given below. In each instance the revised version is given first:

Psalm 37, Verse 20:

"As for the ungodly they shall perish; and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the flower of the field: yea, even as the smoke shall they consume away."

"As for the ungodly they shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall consume as the fat of lambs: yea, even as the smoke shall they consume away."

Psalm 62, Verse 9:

"As for the children of men, they are but vanity, the children of men are deceitful: tried in the balance they are altogether lighter than vanity itself."

"As for the children of men, they are but vanity: the children of men are deceitful upon the weights, they are altogether lighter than vanity itself."

Psalm 72, Verse 6:

"He shall come down like the rain upon the tender grass; even as the drops that water the earth."

"He shall come down like the rain into a fleece of wool; even as the drops that water the earth."

Urging that the suggested changes be rejected, the London Daily Express says editorially: "The committee of revision has been trying to modify the immortal songs of David to suit the less robust constitutions of today. The psalms of David were for a vigorous race, a race of conquerors. In their verses we have found the fundamental passions of a mighty people expressed with inspired genius. When war and conquest was the theme there was and clash of battle in the very words. Hatred and with anguish and sorrow were portrayed with the vividness of a storm among the hills. And when the psalmist sang of beauty it was in such accents race no survive until the human race no longer responds to the appeal of music. The Book of Common Prayer is one of the twin glories of our literature. It has consoled and inEdward VI. Our modern Bolsheviks and Bowdlers have no right to degrade the psalter."

French Boats May Reduce Tahiti Trade With United States

Papeete, Tahiti, June 11.—A regular tri-monthly steamer service between France and Tahiti and New Caledonia will be instituted in the near future by the French company, Messagerie Maritime, according to recent announcement.

It is expected here that this will greatly reduce importations from the United States, since direct steamer service with France, where lower prices prevail and on whose goods heavy import duties are not charged, will turn trade away from America.

Freight Market

In their fortnightly report on the freight market, Messrs. Wheelock and Company write as follows:

With the exception of moderate shipments of Tea going forward to Europe and America, the freight market remains unchanged and prospects of improvement in the near future are far from promising.

COASTWISE

There is little or no change to report on this market since last writing and our Northern market remains very quiet while, according to reports from the South, there is not much doing there either at the moment.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

June 14, 1923

Spot bar silver was unchanged and forward down 1-16d. in London yesterday. The New York price was unchanged and the London-New York cross rate declined to 461¼. The only change in our official quotations here today was a rise in the Franc rate to 1130. Our market in the early part of the morning was steady and became firm in the course of the day.

At the opening there were sellers of Sterling at 3-1⅜ for cash, 3-1-11-16 for June, 3-1-9-16 for July and 3-1⅜ for August. There were sellers of Gold Dollars at 72½ for June delivery, 72⅜ for July and 72¼ for forward.

Later in the day the market firmed up and at the close there were sellers of Sterling at 3/1⅞ for June delivery, 3/1⅝ for July and 3/1½ for August.

There were sellers of Gold Dollars at 72⅜ for June delivery, 72⅝ for July and 72½ for forward. There were sellers of Yen at 67⅝ for near delivery and 67¾ for forward Money is becoming increasingly tight and this is resulting in firming up of the Exchange Market.

Banks as a rule are keen sellers for near delivery. Banks were quoting 3-2¼ 74¼ and 1170 for Sterling, Gold Dollar and Franc bills respectively. India bought a small amount of silver in London yesterday and the market there is reported as steady.

There was nothing doing in the New York market but it is reported as steady.

Exchange Market

In their weekly report on the exchange market, Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand write as follows:

Exchange:—After slight fluctuations the London price of silver at 31¾d. is 1-16d. higher than last week. The rate for two months forward is quoted 31 7-16d. Our official quotation went down ¼d. on the 8th instant but on the 11th recovered to last week's closing quotation of 3/1½d.

Throughout the week our Market has ruled steady for June delivery, with ¼d. to 5-16d. above official quotation offering but weak forward with a doubtful 3/1⅜ for August T/T on London, falling to 3/1 December. We close much on these lines, with little or no cover offering in the shape of Exprt Bills, and an easy undertone.

Our stocks of silver are reported as follows:—

Sycee and Bar Silver, Tls. 32,070,000 a decrease of Tls. 19,000.

Chinese and Mexican Dollars $33,720,000 an increase of $910,000.

Estimated value Tls. 46,348,000 as against Tls. 49,365,000 held at this time last year.

Rubber Prices

Messrs. J. A. Wattie and Company have received the following telegram from their Singapore Agents in connection with auctions held there on June 13.

London quotation June 12. Market inactive, Both grades 1-2¾.

Coal Market

In their fortnightly report on the coal market, Messrs. Wheelock and Company state:

Japan Coal.—There is very little change to report on this market since last writing as, although there is a certain amount of inquiry from the silk filatures which are now resuming work for the season, it is difficult to come to terms with them on account of the high freights and high rate of exchange now ruling.

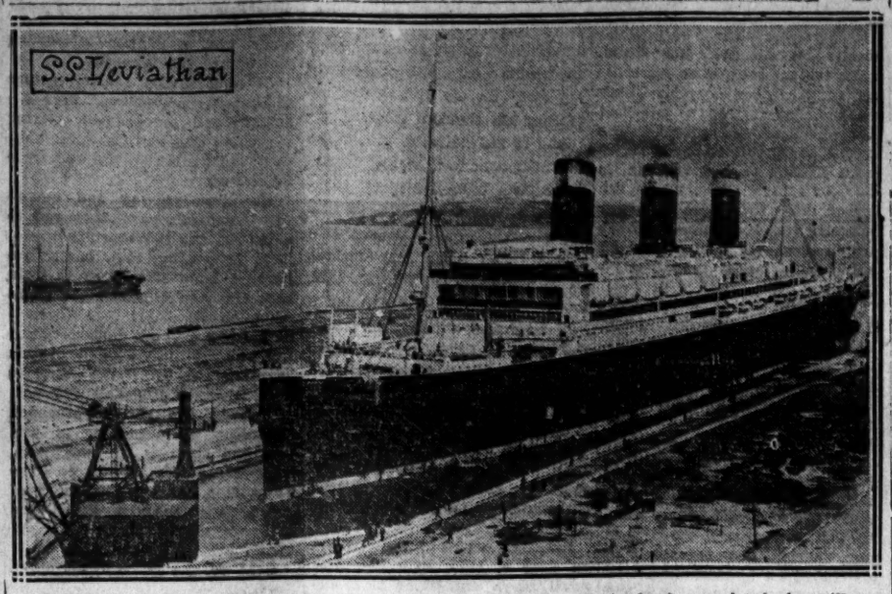
S. S. Leviathan Enters Boston Dry Dock



THE reconditioned liner Leviathan, formerly the German liner Vaterland, is shown here entering the dry dock in Boston, the largest in the world, where she has been sent to have her hull scraped and painted. This ship is now the largest, in point of tonnage, in the world. As soon as she is completed she will run down to the West Indies on her trial trip and then go into the European service.

Says Cost Of Clothing Must Be Brought Down

Chicago, June 12.—How to get clothing to the customer at the lowest price, or in other words a lesson in the reduction of overhead expense similar in character to an abbreviated university course, will be offered to everyone who attends the tenth anniversary convention and exposition of the National Association of Retail Clothiers which will be held here during the last week of September.

According to the arrangements made by Charles E. Wry, executive director of the association, every one who addresses the convention will place particular emphasis upon this important subject.

"The retail clothing dealer who favors high prices, if there still exists such a merchant," said Mr. Wry while discussing the preparatory work of the convention and exposition, "is standing in his own light. We had one sad experience with high prices not so very long ago, and it taught us a lesson. High prices don't mean big profits to the dealer by any means. In fact they mean just the opposite. What we are endeavoring to do all the time, and what we are going to emphatically drive home to everyone who visits our convention and exposition, is that reasonable prices brought about by economy in overhead expense, such as rents, efficiency in handling goods and other incidentals to the handling of clothing, mean reasonable profits and satisfied customers.

"A careful survey of the clothing industry by qualified experts resulted in this conclusion, and this lesson is going to be taught at our convention and exposition morning, noon and night."

President Li's Flight

PRESIDENT LI Yuan-hung's flight from Peking just at the moment when the vitally important negotiations resulting from the Lincheng outbreak are about to be undertaken may be interpreted in several ways. The most logical interpretation however is that Tsao Kun and the Chihli Party do not want him to participate in the parleys.

Tsao Kun and Wu Pei-fu as the heads of the Chihli party are the principal targets at the moment. The Lincheng atrocity was perpetrated in territory controlled by them. Moreover the Peking Government, what there is of it, is their creature. Even President Li himself was induced by them to reassume the office of Chief Executive. It is well known that the President is not a strong character; he is opposed to radical decisions and violence.

It was therefore to be expected that the Chihli chieftains being under fire would set about scheming to a put strong henchman of their own at the head of the government.

The diplomatic corps backed by the various governments is making ready to bring heavy pressure to bear. Condiflons such as have come to exist in China are not to be tolerated any longer. The main attack by the foreign powers will be directed against militarism and the tuchunate of which the most powerful leaders are Tsao and Wu who now have to bear the brunt of attack. Therefore as we have pointed out they will want the strongest man they can find to sit in as President. Tsao himself is said to want the job and it would not be surprising to us to see him seize it.

Gold In Labrador Calls 100,000 Who Wait Thaw

BY LLOYD ROBERTS

Ottawa, Canada, by mail.—Gold! That penetrating cry shrills down from the Labrador—gold in the Labrador—gold for the sluicing—gold assaying $7,000 a ton—gold! gold! Visions of California, visions of Klondike, of Ballarats, Bonanzas, Eldorados, gold stampedes and gold-crazed adventurers from Cortez to Carmack leap to mind. But these are dust of dreams, dead. Is there to be a resurrection? They say so—Bellew says so, Jeffrey, McGrath, Morrison and thousands more like them with their claims registered at St. John's and their nerves tinging for the warm winds that will shatter the ice fields barring them from fabulous wealth—or poverty.

The biggest gold rush the world has ever seen, predict those who claim to know. And why not? Has not the precious metal been seen, ouched, tested by mineralogists, assayers, veterans of former campaigns? Does it not lie scattered in the dirt at your very door? Is the old lust dead that will drive a man to forsake wife and home and country for this lambent glitter at the end of the rainbow? Wait!

What is it all about? A romantic tale, a fitting preface to the epic bound to follow. Henry C. Bellew of Montreal, a mining man and veteran of the Klondike goldfields, had signed a contract with a Dutch lumber company to supply it with 60,000 cords of pulp wool. Hearing of a 140,000 acre spruce limit for sale in Labrador for only $160,000 he secured the option on it for $26.000, got in touch with certain New England lumbermen and Richard W Edwards, a lumber cruiser of Jordan, N. Y., and arranged to resell it to them for $300,000 plus the 60,000 cords of pulpwood promised the firm in Holland.

This was all very satisfactory as far as it went. But before consummating the deal the lumbermen naturally wanted to look over the property, and a small party of experts, accompanied by Mr Bellew, chartered a ship at Halifax and sailed north. Their first suspicion of trouble came upon their arrival at Stag Bay. They had been advised by the timber owners that there was plenty of depth to the very beach, but the keel touched when two miles out. Even the ship's boat found difficulty in making shore. A few hours' reconnaissance proved that the "timber" limit was composed chiefly of rock and tundra and that Mr. Bellew had paid $26,000 for the information.

THAT ALLUVIAL SOIL

Mr. Bellew has become immune to disappointment. At least it fails to dull his faculties. While returning to the ship with Mr Edwards he was struck, with the similarity of the alluvial soil along Big Brook River to that along Bononzo Creek, and paused to examine it through the prospector's lens. There were specks that glittered. Remembering the ancient adage his companion refused to get enthusiastic. But it is difficult to deceive an old Klondiker with either mica or fool's gold, and, if it wasn't the real thing what was it? So Bellew, having nothing to pan with and being wet and cold at the time, filled his pockets with dirt and eventually beguiled Edwards to follow suit. Whatever the outcome they agreed that it would be just as well to keep it a secret.

On arrival in New York a little bag of grafel was sent to No. 99 John Street. A few days later a signed and sealed document was sent to Mr. Edwards at Syracuse. It read as follows:

LEDOUX & COMPANY
(Inc.)
Engineers, Chemists and Assayers,
99 John Street, New York
Certificate of Analysis.
New York, Aug. 19, 1921.

The sample of gravel, weighing 25 lbs. 3 oz., from R. W. Edwards, marked "Labrador," and submitted to us for analysis contains:

GOLD ..... 5 oz.

Well! Five ounces of gold from 25 pounds 3 ounces of soil figures out at about $7,500 per ton. The wildest dreams of California and the Klondixe fell short of such a mark. It was scarcely believable. But there was the $78 in payment for the gold after deduction of assayers' expenses, and there was the certificate of analysis. Edward and Bellew were glad that they had kept the secret. It was a secret worth keeping until they had registered their claims.

EXPEDITION FINANCED

It was too late in the season to carry out his plan of campaign. But the following year Mr. Bellew took a few men into his confidence and they financed an expedition to Big Brook River and Black Duck Brook flowing into Stag Bay. The purpose of the visit was to ascertain if the gravel or river bed was gold-bearing and if so to what extent.

The river bed and both banks were panned for some twenty miles up from the mouth, with the result that fine gold was found, while further back in an old channel of the river nuggets were obtained by digging a few feet into the sand and gravel. The ground being wet the prospectors failed to sink to bed rock or to any considerable depth where the coarse gold and nuggets would naturally lie, and yet the assays per ton of gravel ranged from $9 to $33 as a result of one day's panning.

True, this was a far cry from $7,500 a ton (samples likely taken from a rain-washed bank), when you consider that a pick and shovel man is supposed to make a fair profit on a couple of dollars a ton and that the Guggenheims are at present dredging the Yukon wastes at a yield of 55 to 60 cents per cubic yard (about a ton and a half), Big Brook River sounds pretty rich. Mr. Bellew then did the logical thing, staking out seventy 330-acre claims for himself and friend in the most promising places, and carrying back to St. John's to register them.

NEWSPAPERS TELL STORY

Instantly the newspapers got hold of the story and the cat was out of the bag. The Minister of Crown, Landis, became deluged with inquiries; hundreds rushed into the district around Macoubik and Stag Bays and staked out their claims along the small streams; miners, prospectors, adventurers from Quebec to the antipodes began to prick up their ears and listen to the first rumblings of a new gold stampede. But before the avalanche could get well under way the early winter had closed the sea trails, paralysing the movement for six months at least.

That much for the preface. The story itself, though still unwritten, seems fairly obvious. News that the leaven is doing its work continues to trickle in from every quarter of the globe. On Jan. 1 the Deputy Minister of Mines at St. John's wired an inquirer, "645 locations in vicinity of Stag Bay taken up to date." The number has doubled since then.

Stories fascinating as fiction come from gold-seekers who got in before the close of navigation. For instance, there is the discovery of the supposed traditional "River of Gold," by Capt. Jack Snow and George Hierlihy of Bay Roberts, who conduct a fishing station at the ironbound Islands of the Labrador. It seems that the Hierlihy family won the undying gratitude of an old Eskimo by nursing him through the flu epidemic that ravaged the coast a few years back. Last summer when Bellew's party of mining engineers, Jeffery, Ross, Finnie and others, arrived on the ground the Hierlihys, the only "livyers" in the vicinity, treated them with proverbial Newfoundland hospitality.

GUESS OF ESKIMO

The men from outside talked much of timber and pulpwood, but the Eskimo had caught them testing the soil of the river bed and guessed their true business. If it were gold they were after they were on the wrong river. So he informed Hierlihy after his guests had departed. There was a brook five miles north of Big Brook, trickling into the sea between Anderson's and Woody Points in such an unobtrusive way that no one would suspect its presence. It did not take Snow and Hierlihy long to investigate the story, and what they found took them in hot haste to civilisation.

Going south they heard nothing but tales of the Bellew and Jeffery gold strikes and the extent of their claims. Had this little stream already been snatched up? No, it did not even appear on the Crown land or Admiralty maps, and Capt. Snow was forced to make out affidavits of discovery as well as a map showing the location of the river. The Eskimo have an ancient tradition woven around a river of gold, and Snow and Hierlihy are wondering.

Then there is George Richmond of O'Brien Station, Quebec, who remembers when he was prospecting in 1897 along the Labrador coast he met a prospector from Michigan who swore there was gold in the vicinity of Hamilton Inlet or Cape Charles. Ten years later Mr. Richmond met an employee of the Hudson's Bay Company at Montreal who told him of picking up a nugget as a hazel nut from the bed of a small river near Cape Wolstenholme. This employee had often taken out samples of quartz that had assayed 23 ounces for free gold per ton. The company discouraged prospecting, but if Mr. Richmond would co-operate he would send out some samples. But the man died, and his secret with him.

GOLD 30 YEARS AGO

Somewhat similar is the experience of Capt. Kent, the famous sealing master, who reported gold in the neighborhood of recent discoveries over thirty years ago, backing up his words with nuggets and pay dirt. He too died without revealing his treasure trove.

And so the stories of gold in the Labrador come to light, some myths other facts beyond dispute, running back from Bellew to Frodisher and all strung on the same golden thread. The Sieur des Combles, writing from Brest, Feb. 13, 1608, says: "After resting a day and a half we raised anchor, and taking the route of St. Lawrence Island, we were again thwarted and had to land on a small island named Les Chasses, where we remained a fortnight befor we could sail again. We found there small grains of pure gold mixed with the sand, so much that some of our men gathered more than thirty pounds' weight of it."

Frobisher sailed from England on June 8, 1576, with his three small "ships" registering 25, 15 and 10 tons respectively, bent on finding the Northwest Passage. Instead of this he found gold on the Labrador. Later he returned on a gold hunting expedition, financed by Queen Elizabeth and certain gentlemen of London, and brought back his vessels freighted with ore, which yielded from £23 to £53 sterling to the ton.

400 YEARS OF HOPES

Thus for over 400 years adventurers have been nibbling at the outer rind. A forbidding enough rind to all appearaces it is, too, with its great rocky headlands as much as 3,000 feet high, its narrow fiords, its treeless barrens and its slow sentinelling icebergs. Jacques Cartier wrote in 1534 that Labrador was "the land God gave to Cain," as there was "not one cartload of earth on the whole of it"; while a century and a half later Roger Curtis called it "a country formed of frightful mountains and unfruitful valleys, a prodigious heap of barren rock." Although both voyagers exaggerated slightly it is true that "the Labrador Peninsula is less known than the interior of Africa or the wastes of Siberia," as A. S. Packard says; is a country almost without a history and what Dr. Wilfred Grenfell so aptly calls "this great, lone land of silence."

But what of the recent cause of all this furore? Bellew, Payne, McConnell, Seybold and others of Ottawa and Montreal have pooled their interests, formed a company and are preparing to ravish the Labrador River beds with the first crack of spring. They have purchased a small steamer from the Dominion Government, also a wireless plant, the finest mining equipment, everything, in short, necessary to the successful working of their claims. Their employees include mining engineers, drillers, laxemen, wireless experts and veterans all of them.

Navigation about Northern Newfoundland and Southern Labrador opens up around June. The Petrel, Capt. Horscroft, is attempting it early in May. Stag Bay will be free of ice in July, but this band of adventurers expect to be drilling down to bedrock in June. "Improbable if not impossible," declared a north woodsman to me a few days ago in New York. "You will be hung up at St. John's a month or caught in the icefields off Belle Isle."

NOT EASILY STOPPED

But Capt. Horscroft is not only a veteran navigator but a bit of a hellion who had five ships torpedoed under him during the Great War and is not discouraged by impossibilities. When the rush strikes the coast they figure to welcome it with more than a semblance of civilisation. The searing canyons of California and the frozen trails of the Yukon claimed their victims by the thousands. Labrador will have a different story to tell if law and organisation and foresight can write it. Yukon had its thousands and California its ten thousands, but "the great, lone land" looks for its hundred thousands and makes its preparations accordingly.

Labrador is dry, not as the United States and Canada are dry, but in fact. There is no drunkenness anywhere on the thousand miles of coast because there is no drinking. The missionaries have seen to that. The Newfoundland Government intends to keep it dry. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police will see to that. Neither are there to be gambling dens and dance halls, neither legalised vice nor riotous living. In short, the authorities decree that it shall be a denatured gold rush, a twentieth century, law abiding stampede where the prize will go the weak as well as the strong and where war, wine and women will be conspicuous by their absence. Will they succeed? That will be another story and a mighty interesting one before it's finished.

"I look to see 100,000 people in there by September," says Mr. Bellew, and independent mining engineers and business men have ventured figures all the way from 30,000 up.

Canadian railway and steamship companies are prepared to assist in the transportation problem by putting their boats into harbors from New York to Quebec; the Aerial Navigation Company of St. John's, Newfoundland, has taken out a charter with the idea of providing a beeline passage from the North Shore to Stag Bay; the Hudson's Bay post at Rigolet has been approached regarding the possibility of huskies and sleds in an emergency. Everywhere from Alaska to Cape Town men await the approach of spring with a fierce impatience harkening to the cry on the north wind:

Gold on the Labrador—Gold!

Bobbie And His Pa

BY WILLIAM F. KIRK

Our teacher was telling us in school about the habit of putting off things. She said it was the curse of progress.

Yes, sed Pa, it is a deadly habit. Many a yung man as brite as you Bobbie, yes, even briter like I was wen yung, sed Pa, has ruined his career by that habit and many a fair lady, almost as fair as you, sed Pa to Ma, is a slaiv to the habit, sed Pa.

It seems hard to beleeve, sed Ma.

But it is the truth, sed Pa. The only way to git rid of the eevil, sed Pa, is to be up and doing all the time never putting off till tomorrow what can be done today, sed Pa.

Why in the world cant peepul be sensibul and not form eevil habbits? sed Ma.

We'll, sed Pa, the wurld is full of so many different kinds of peepul that it is hard to tell what sum of them will do.

I see, sed Ma.

Yes indeed, sed Pa. If everybody was wise and kean of intellack, like me, sed Pa, there wud be no foolish habbits.

Not eeven one teeny weeny foolish habbit? set Ma.

Not eeven one, sed Pa. This wud be a grate wurld in wich to live in, sed Pa, if everybody was like me.

Did you git that, Bobbie? sed Ma.

Yes, I sed, I herd what Pa sed. aint Pa kind of swelled up, Ma? I sed.

Now that you menshun it, Bobbie, sed Ma, I beleeve he is.

Is the swelled up Habbit as bad as the Habbit that's the curse of progress? I sed to Ma.

No, Bobbie, sed Ma, it is jest as silly but it is moar harmerless, sed Ma.

I doant see why peepul has to put off things, life is too (2) short. Going to bed and getting up is the only things I try to put off.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

The Turk announces that he's through
With wedding women by the score;
He turns from old ways to the new,
The harem gets his vote no more.
"I've thought," says he, "I've thought and thought,
And if you ask the reason why,
I'll tell you candidly I'm not
Inclined to want to leave a lot
Of wailing widows when I die.

"I had ambitions once that seemed
To be ennobling and sublime;
Each time I took a wife I dreamed
Of adding to my string, in time.
I've wooed Fatimas here and there,
And liked them much for being fat;
Once I was strong for bossing where
My wives were busy pulling hair,
But, after this, no more of that!

"I used to wish to be the dad
Of sixty children, more or less,
But that's a hope I'm very glad
To say I do not now possess.
I've ceased to think that Allah shows
Especial favor to the man,
And gives him most serene repose,
Who leaves most orphans when he goes
To join the last, long caravan.
"I'm through with all that stuff; I've ceased
To wish to marry soon and late;
I think I'll have my trousers creased,
And drop all but a single mate.
The Christian's ways look good, and I'm
For finding out just how they'll work;
Life, after all, may be sublime
With only one wife—at a time—
Some system, I'll say," says the Turk!

Uranus And Neptune

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"Uranus and Neptune are the most distant known planets, and Neptune is about a billion miles from Uranus. Astronomers claim that Neptune exerts a strong pull upon Uranus, affecting it in its orbit. Does this pull of one planet on another vary according their distance from the sun or from one another? If the latter is the case, what prevents a large planet like Jupiter frou pulling the earth from its orbit, Jupiter being so much closer to the earth than Neptune is to Uranus?—Bernie Jordan, Pontiac, Ill."

The pull varies according to the distance of the planets from each other. The variation, however, is not directly as the simple distance, but inversely as the square of the distance. If the distance becomes ½ what it was, the pull will become the inverse square of ½, i.e., ½ turned upside down and squared, thus 2-1 x 2-1 equals 4-1, or simply 4. So at half the distance the pull is four times greater. At twice the distance it would be four times less.

The pull also depends upon the mass, or amount of attractive power, in the pulling planet.

Now, with these facts to work with, let us see how it is with Neptune and Uranus, and with Jupiter and the earth. Neptune, as you say, is about 1,000 million miles from Uranus when they are nearest together. At the same time Uranus is about 1,800 million miles from the sun. But the mass, or inherent attractive force, of the sun is 20,000 times that of Neptune.

If they were at equal distance from Uranus the sun's pull upon Uranus would be 20,000 times that of Neptune. But since Neptune is nearer than the sun in the ratio of 1.8 to 1, we square 1.8, getting about 3¼ for product This shows that Neptune gains 3¼ times over the sun by virtue of its greater nearness. Accordingly we divide 20,000 (the sun's advantage over Neptune by virtue of its greater mass) by 3¼, and thus find that the real excess of the sun's pull upon Uranus over Neptune's is only about as 6.150 to 1. Or Neptune exerts 1-6,150 of the sun's pull.

Stop there for a moment and let us take up Jupiter and the earth. When they are nearest together their distance from one another is, in round numbers, four times the sun's distance from the earth. Jupiter's mass, or pulling power, is about 1-1,000 that of the sun. Apply our rule to these figures. At the same distance Jupiter would pull the earth with one-thousandth of the sun's force, but Jupiter's distance from the earth, instead of being less than the sun's—as in the case of Neptune and Uranus—is four times greater. We must, therefore, invert 4 and square it, giving 1-16, and then multiply this by 1-1,000, giving 1-16,000, which is the fraction representing Jupiter's real pull upon the earth as compared with the sun's, a much smaller ratio than in the other case.

Now we will interpret the meaning of the figures that we have obtained. In both cases the planet pulled upon by another planet is disturbed in its orbital motion. But Jupiter's power to disturb the earth in this way is, as we have seen, much less than Neptune's power similarly to disturb Uranus.

Moreover the earth is comparatively very near the sun, and consequently travels rapidly in its orbit, while Neptune and Uranus, being far from the sun, travel very slowly. Owing to their remaining long in one another's neighborhood on the same side of the sun, the effect of the attraction between them has far more time to accumulate in a definite direction than can occur with Jupiter and the earth.

The interesting fact is that all of the planets disturb one another in their movements. Not one of them escapes this effect of universal gravitation, and not one travels in a perfectly uniform orbit. In the case of the earth disturbing the moon, as I have shown in another article, the effect is so powerful, owing to the nearness of the two bodies to one another compared with the distance of the sun, that the moon's path in space weaves in and out, so to speak, running at one time between the earth and the sun, and half a month later outside the earth, the latter being then between the moon and the sun.

ART SECTION

The weekly meetings have been carried on as usual at Mrs. Roberts' house each Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. Several designs for posters and book covers for "Ye Olde English Fayre" have been sent in for exhibition at Headquarters and members have been asked to vote on them. These are of a very high standard and the Section is to be congratulated on providing such a variety of interesting exhibits.

One talented member of the Section has also designed some beautiful dresses reminiscent of the Eighteenth Century to be worn at "Ye Olde English Fayre" in October. The task to be worked on during the summer months is "Sunshine and Shade" and it is hoped that as many members as possible will take an active interest in so fascinating a subject.

At the general meeting held at Headquarters on Thursday, June 7, it was decided to make inquiries with a view to securing a studio for the Art Section.

Owing to her approaching marriage in October and subsequent departure from Shanghai, Miss McColl has resigned her office as Secretary. Mrs. Churchill Knight has consented to step into the breach and Mrs. Tennett has been elected to fill the vacancy on the Committee.

GARDENING SECTION

The last meeting of the season will take place on Friday the 22nd of June at No. 76 Route de Say Zoong at 5 p.m. by kind permission of Mrs. Craddock. Mr. Kerr has kindly consented to deal with the treatment of Roses at this time of year.

DRAMATIC SECTION

The financial result of the two performances of "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire" given by this Section, has proved most gratifying. After deducting all expenses the substantial sum of $636 was realised and the Committee are to be congratulated on so successful an achievement.

B.W.A. GARDEN PARTY

Though the weather proved unkind, a large number of guests attended the B. W. A. Garden Party held on the 7th of June last at 460 Avenue Joffre, by kind permission of Mrs. H. E. Arnhold. The Sweet Pea show was an unqualified success. Many beautiful specimens were to be seen and Mrs. Trenchard Davis, Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Frye and Mrs. Marples were the prize-winners on this occasion. Mr. Rognsto and Mr. McGregor very kindly consented to judge the exhibits and the best thanks of the Association are due to them for the interest they have taken in the Gardening Section and for their valuable advice and help on many occasions. A very enjoyable tea was served by the entertainment committee, who wish to thank all those members who kindly sent them cakes.

B.W.A. FLAG

Members are reminded that the Association are desirous of having a house flag and invite suggestions on the subject. Will those who are interested send in designs for consideration to Mrs. Churchill Knight, 28, Weihaiwei Road.

TWO MEN BURNED IN EXPLOSION ON OIL VESSEL HERE

Fire Aboard Gallic Prince Threatens Socony Installation

Two men were badly injured and the big Standard Oil Company installation in Pootung was for a time threatened yesterday morning by a fire which broke out on board the steamer Gallic Prince, which had just finished discharging gasoline.

The fire broke out in a hold of the vessel, at about 10:25 a.m. to the accompaniment of an explosion, while the two men were still in the hold. They were taken out so badly burned that it seemed at first they were dead.

Meantime a call had been put in to the Yangtszepoo fire station and a fleet of sampans brought the fire fighters to the scene in rush style. The fire was quickly controlled and both men were carried to a shed in the Socony compound where they were given first aid treatment and restored to consciousness. They then were taken by launch to the Shantung Road Hospital.

The explosion came just as the men had discharged the hold. Had it come earlier, nothing could have saved the ship, in the opinion of those in charge of the installation. In fact, the explosion of a whole shipload of gasoline would have been likely to have cast flaming gasoline cases far and wide over the Pootung plant where immense stores of combustibles are waiting delivery and being worked over meantime.

Shortly after the men had been rescued from the hold, the first aid force of the Yangtszepoo station arrived and aided in resuscitating them. The fire float followed, but the men on the installation and the first levies from Yangtszepoo Station had succeeded in stopping the fire most effectually.

Foreign Banks To Quit Vladivostok

Vladivostok, June 11.—The Soviet government, in its endeavor to collect two percent on all money brought into the country, has demanded a considerable sum from the Korean Bank. This institution refuses payment, saying it would rather close up in Vladivostok and move to Harbin. The Yokohama Specie Bank, faced with the same situation, is said to be closing its accounts.

If the government persists in exacting the percentage, Vladivostok will be without foreign banking facilities.

KIANGWAN RACE CLUB DEFENDANT IN DAMAGE SUIT

Mr. S. Libby Files Action Claiming Tls. 50,000

Suit for Tls. 50,000 damages has been filed in the Mixed Court against the International Recreation Club by Mr. Solomon Libby, who alleges that on April 28 he was unlawfully taken into custody and was assaulted by the servants or agents of the club at Kiangwan.

The statement of claim alleges that on the afternoon of April 28 at about 12 o'clock plaintiff was imprisoned and held for half an hour "unlawfully and with force on the pretended charge that he had parked his motor car in an unauthorised place." It is further alleged that plaintiff was assaulted, that his clothing was torn and that he suffered bodily injury. Plaintiff's claim is filed by Mr. F. J. Schuhl.

In their answer the defendant club, represented by Mr. Wright, of Hanson's, states that the International Recreation Club is an unincorporated proprietory club, the shareholders being the proprietors and, the largest number of shareholders being British, the jurisdiction of the Mixed Court is not admitted.

The defendants state further that they deny the alleged assault and imprisonment by themselves or servants and declare that the plaintiff was not injured to the extent claimed at all.

5,000 Homeless In Hangchow Fire

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, June 11.—Between five and six thousand people were rendered homeless here this afternoon by a disastrous fire which broke out near the Fong Loh Gyao about half past three. The flames swept quickly toward the district of the Great Street known as Kwun Yang Ke, crossed the street and burned toward the model section of the city another half block before they were checked. The fire also burned about a half block on the Great Street and reached within six doors of the main post office.

Property damages cannot be estimated yet, but more than 250 buildings were burned and it is easily the most destructive fire the city has had for the past decade. An oil shop is said to have been the origin of the fire.

Bandit Movies Shown Saturday

The moving pictures of the release of the Shanghai foreigners who were held captives by the bandits in Shantung will be shown at the Apollo Theater tomorrow night. The movies were taken by Mr. J. Bendorf of Pathe who went from Tsaochuang to Woshonkuo, a picturesque village halfway to Paotzuku, to take the pictures.

The movies show the captives riding on horseback and in chairs along the mountain path entering the village, close-ups of the eight captives, and other interesting scenes about Tsaochuang and on the return trip to Shanghai.
